Seattle Yachts Share Swiftsure Race Honors

By IRVING STRICKLAND and MONTE ROBERTS

Two Seattle yachts shared top honors in the annual Swiftsure ocean racing classic over the weekend, and each set new corrected time records.

After battling it out within hailing distance for slightly over 30 hours, the two winners were: Swiftsure trophy, Adios, skipper Carl Jensen, time 30 hrs. 34 mins. 12 sec.; corrected time, 25:11:53.

City of Victoria trophy for first boat to finish, Maruffa, skipper John Graham, time 30:17:46; corrected time, 25:23:18. Adios and Maruffa left the rest of the 23 entries far astern as they flew home with all sails drawing in a favoring westerly.

In third place was Bellingham's Gossip, home in 33:14:18; corrected time, 26:35:17.

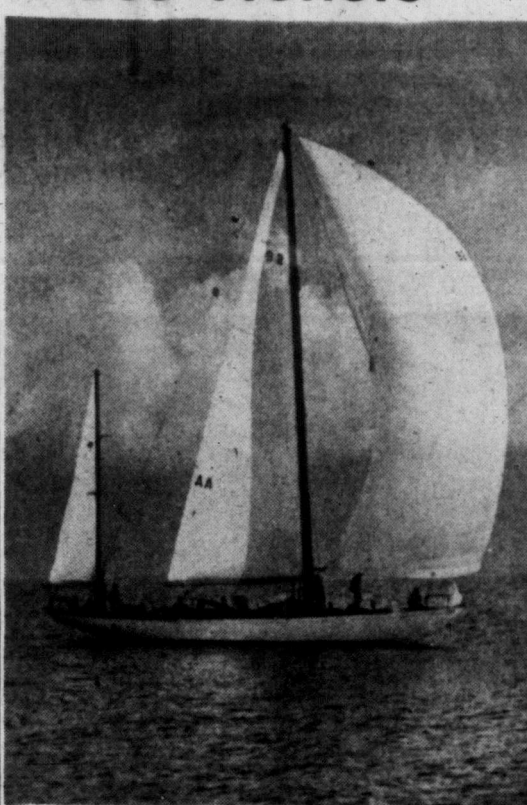

On the stretch run, watched by about 1,500 spectators along the waterfront, Skipper Graham hung on every inch of canvas in an effort to stretch his lead over Adios to more than 28 minutes—the difference between the time allowance of the two boats.

But Carl Jensen in Adios hung on grimly. He was forced to drop his spinnaker briefly as he cut through the Race Rocks inside passage; but his crew held it up again in time to cut Maruffa's margin to about 14 minutes, giving Adios the Swiftsure Trophy.

Yachtsmen agree both Seattle Yacht Club entries deserve the highest praise for what was probably the finest racing in the history of the classic.

Press, radio and TV representatives and Royal Victoria Yacht Club officials aboard Island Tug and Barge Co.'s deep-sea towboat Sudbury agreed the "men were separated from the boys" at the Swiftsure lightship, turning point in the race.

On the outward stretch Saturday, at least half of the entries

TIMES CAMERAMAN on Island Tug & Barge Co.'s Sudbury caught Swiftsure winner, Adios, hard on heels of Maruffa. Adios won on basis of corrected time, is overall winner and class AA winner.

Tallest Totem Souvenir Report to Shareholders

About half the 10,000 people who donated their 50-cent shares for the world's tallest totem project do not live in Victoria but in places all over the world. Shares were sent to them by relatives in most cases.

Next Friday the Times will publish a special souvenir edition on the tallest totem as part of the regular editions. It will, in effect, be a report to shareholders on the completion of the project, containing pictures of the finished totem and the full story of how it was carried out, in text and photos.

Since many subscribers will wish to send souvenirs to the out-of-town shareholders extra copies will be printed and put in special wrappers for mailing. Advance orders for these may be placed immediately with the Times circulation department, phone 2-3131.

One of the interesting articles in the section is the legend of the totem, told for the first time by Mungo Martin, the chief carver.

The edition will contain the names of all the shareholders in the project, with recognition to the individuals, and firms who have donated their time and services toward its completion.

Dedication of the totem is scheduled for 3 p.m., July 2, at the Beacon Hill Park site where it will be erected.

British Judge Shot Down By Terrorists on Cyprus

Swimming Chef Covers 5 Miles

By TONY DICKASON

Today's Juan de Fuca swim lasted six hours, almost to the second.

Victoria chef Ben Laughren touched the accompanying vessel Meota at 9:07 a.m., about five miles from where he entered the Strait of Juan de Fuca at Horseshoe Bay.

Chop was heavy when he hit the water, and increased to white-capped waves shortly after.

There was no let-up in 10 to 15 mph winds until the swimmer left the water, then, almost magically, wind died and the sea calmed.

Big Ben, a 270-pounder, was tired and cold near his strait bid's end.

His style differed from his previous four attempts on the 18.3 miles of water between

Ben Hated to Call It Quits

It was wind plus the heaving waters that knocked out the game attempt. Burly Ben could probably have gone a considerable distance, but his hopes of getting to the American side were nil.

Trainer Ove Witt, in a dinghy alongside, suggested to Ben that he quit. Ben for a time was adamant and plowed ahead again, knocking it off about 15 minutes later.

Cruel cut was that the bothersome wind-freshened again before it finally died.

To help prevent the sea pounding his head, Ben wore his white bathing cap pulled down to where it almost covered his eyes. He was swimming nearly blind.

A touch not seen for some time in the strait was that of two swimmers pulling along together for a short distance.

Sixteen-year-old Anita Long, a Victoria strait aspirant being managed by Jerry Lavigne, was aboard Geoffrey Wenman's Phyllis F., and at 8:18 plunged off the prow, swimming alongside Ben until the end. She had goggles atop her bathing cap but didn't use them.

Ben made a terrific bid, but the vagaries of Juan de Fuca again proved too much.

He'll try again.

Canadian Wins

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Larry Barclay of Montreal and Vancouver today won his first round match in the all-England tennis championships at Wimbledon.

He defeated M. Belkheja of France.

Another Canadian, Paul Willey of Vancouver, was quickly eliminated.

ROYAL TOUR IN 1959?

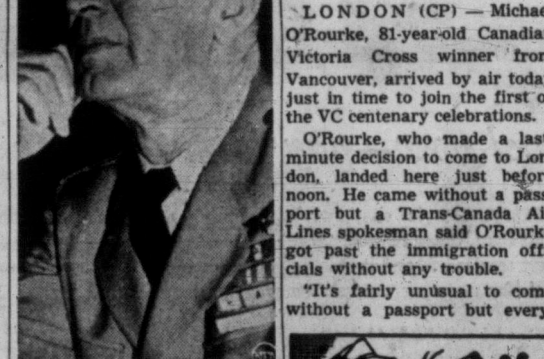

Queen Invited To Open Seaway

LONDON (CP)—If the Queen accepts an invitation to go to Canada for the official opening of the St. Lawrence seaway, the chances are she'll probably make a coast-to-coast tour.

Prime Minister St. Laurent indicated this today in an informal chat with Canadian reporters. Later, he drove to Buckingham Palace, where he had an audience with the Queen and extended an invitation to her to visit Canada for the seaway opening, scheduled for 1959.

Before leaving for the palace, he said in reply to a reporter's question that if the Queen accepted the invitation, there would probably be pressure from many Canadian communities for the Queen to extend her stay long enough to visit their part of the country as well.

He said it seemed unlikely that the Queen would go to Canada just for the opening.

ADMIRAL DIES

Credited with guiding the U.S. Navy to victory in the Second World War, after the bombing of Pearl Harbor by the Japanese, Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, 77, died today at Portsmouth Naval Hospital. The former commander-in-chief of the U.S. fleet was stricken with a heart attack early Sunday.

Leonard's 67 Marks Canada Cup Series

WENTWORTH, Eng. (BUP)—Canada, led by Stan Leonard's four-under-par 67, jumped into the halfway lead of the fourth annual Canada Cup international golf competition with an aggregate 36-hole total of 283, three strokes ahead of the U.S.

Leonard, the veteran pro from Lachute, Que., also took over the individual lead from Ben Hogan of the United States, adding his 67 to a first round 69 for a 36-hole total of 136, a stroke better than bantam Ben.

Leonard's partner, Al Balding of Toronto, carded a one over 72 after shooting a 75 Sunday to give Canada the lead.

The U.S. team of Hogan and Sam Snead, pre-tournament favorites, had an aggregate of 286, two strokes better than the Wales twosome of Dai Lees and Dennis Smalldon.

His 20-foot putt for an eagle on the 18th stopped on the rim of the cup.

Neck, Head Wounds In Murder Attempt

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—Terrorists attempted to assassinate Senior Justice Bernard Shaw here today.

They fired two shots which injured Shaw in the neck and head.

Shaw was shot as he sat in his car in Nicosia's Victoria street.

The shooting occurred during the rush hour when Nicosia workers go home for a three-hour noon break.

Justice Shaw is a senior judge of the special court which handles the most serious EOKA terrorist crimes. He has sentenced several terrorists to death and others to life imprisonment.

Shaw passed the death sentence on Michael Karoalis and Andreas Demetriou, the two terrorists whose execution in May led to strong protests by the Greek government and disorders in Cyprus.

SERIOUS CONDITION

Justice Shaw was hit in the neck and head by the shots and is said to be in serious condition.

He served in the Indian police, was called to the bar in 1923 and entered the colonial service in 1925. He has since served as a legal official in Kenya, Palestine and in England.

Shaw was about to go home for lunch when two armed men approached his car. Leaning forward, they quickly fired two shots. The judge fell forward, shot in the head and neck.

His escort jumped from the car and fired at the two gunmen, who dashed to a small car and sped away.

The audacious attack presumably by EOKA gunmen, occurred just after 1 p.m. in the Armenian quarter inside the walled part of Nicosia.

Immediately after the shooting British troops cordoned off the walled city.

Later they opened fire on people trying to swarm over the walls of the old city in an attempt to break the cordon.

A woman was shot in the arm. Shaw came to Cyprus last November to take charge of the special court.

He is constantly guarded by armed policemen. A bodyguard goes with him everywhere.

30 Die in Crash Of BOAC Airliner

LAGOS, Nigeria (Reuters)—Thirty persons were killed when a Canadian-built British Overseas Airways airliner with 45 aboard crashed and burst into flames shortly after leaving Kano Airport Sunday night for London.

Harold Watkinson, minister of transport and civil aviation, disclosed the death toll in the House of Commons in London.

The dead included 27 passengers, a stewardess and a steward. Twenty-five of the passengers were killed in the crash and two died later.

An official announcement here today said the four-engined Argonaut ran into a rain cloud after takeoff from the North Nigerian town and lost height "for reasons not yet known."

It struck a group of trees a quarter mile from the airport and burst into flames after crashing to the ground.

Thirteen passengers and five crew survived the crash but two young boys died later and several others were reported seriously injured.

The 38 passengers included 12 women, six children and three infants.

The injured were taken to hospital in Kano, a mud-walled city of 130,000 population, 500 miles northwest of here.

Flames swept through the airliner searing some of the bodies almost beyond recognition.

Last September another BOAC Argonaut flying from London to Lagos crashed at Idris airport, Tripoli, with the loss of 15 lives.

There was no indication that Americans or Canadians were on board the plane Sunday.

A team of BOAC experts left London today for Kano to begin an investigation. They flew in an Argonaut.

Huge Massed Hunt For Vancouver Boy

BUP and CP Dispatches

VANCOUVER—The greatest organized hunt in Vancouver's history is continuing as policemen and civilians comb the city's southern district in a block-by-block search for a missing eight-year-old boy.

A pick-up order for a man with "stained and crooked teeth" has been issued by police.

Bobby Henderson disappeared about 4 p.m. Saturday. He was last seen playing near a graveyard at Thirty-third and Fraser.

Since then nearly 1,000 policemen, Boy Scouts, relatives, friends and volunteer organizations have hunted the youngster without success.

This afternoon 18 policemen, dozens of civilians and a well-trained dog are continuing the search.

The hunt started shortly after 5 p.m. Saturday and continued through both Saturday and Sunday nights.

appeared to have a fighting chance, including the three Canadian boats, Vancouver's Mary Bower and Gometra, and the RCN's Oriole from Esquimalt.

GOT EARLY LEAD

Adios had established an early lead, with Maruffa and Dorade, also a Seattle Yacht Club entry, snapping at her heels.

The other yachts were bunched over a 10-mile area, bowing along under a 11 to 12-knot wind. Then Oriole ran into trouble. Her mainsail split, vertically, near the mast, and she lost valuable time despite emergency repairs.

Oriole never recovered; ran into trouble again when becalmed for hours near the lightship, and failed to finish within the time limit.

Yankee Doodle of Portland was also an early casualty when her main blew out. Yankee Clipper, sailed by the "rough luck" Seattle Sea Scouts, broke a mainsail and put in to Port Angeles.

The other yachts struggled on, but up to the turn, the race was all between Adios, Maruffa and Dorade. They often passed within a cable length of each other as they tacked the position.

Adios made the turn first, shortly after 1 a.m., followed by Maruffa and Dorade.

Then came the decisive reach: Adios and Maruffa elected a starboard tack, toward the S.S. shore; Dorade heeled on the port tack, in the opposite direction.

TWO DID, TWO DIDN'T

Adios and Maruffa caught the wind, Dorade didn't, and there is the story of the race.

On the way home, Adios led until freshening winds enabled Maruffa, a faster boat before the wind, to overtake her.

It was a two-boat race all the way down the strait, settled only when Adios skimmed home within the handicap time differential.

Interest in the race, on the part of both yachtsmen and landmen, was the greatest ever. For the first time, continuous progress reports were made possible, through the loan of Sudbury and her communications equipment. CKDA's news director, Andy Stephen, carried out a 32-hour marathon broadcast, with reports every hour. Capt. Harley Blagborne, renowned for his deep-sea salvage job of the Greek freighter Makedonia, brought Sudbury close alongside the competing yachts for the photographs appearing in this issue of The Times.

Competitors had high praise for the host, R.V.C. Not a single protest was recorded.

Bullet-Pierced Body Found By Children

EDMONTON (CP) — The bullet-pierced body of Lewis Lloyd, 37, was discovered Sunday afternoon in a rain-drenched ditch near a drive-in theatre on the outskirts of the city.

RCMP said Lloyd moved to Edmonton from Vancouver six weeks ago.

Two children, Gertrude, 11, and Edelgard Herzog, 13, discovered Lloyd's body about 3 p.m. Sunday, 300 yards from their home a half-mile south of the city limits.

Two wounds indicated a bullet had entered his right side and passed through the body, emerging below the heart.

The body lay face up in a ditch on the west side of the muddy road, 200 yards from Lloyd's delivery truck, which had sunk into a five-foot ditch on the other side of the road.

Police sought clues as to how Lloyd left the vehicle after it entered the ditch. Rain had washed away nearly all footprints and tracks.

HUNT WEAPON

RCMP used rakes to scrape the surrounding area and ditches to find a weapon. No blood or traces of bullet marks were found on the truck.

Edmund Gendron, a room-mate and an associate in a landscaping business, is the last known person to have seen Lloyd alive.

Gendron said Lloyd received a phone call about 1 a.m. Sunday, became excited and suddenly left the apartment they shared in a quiet street, close to downtown.

He returned a little later, borrowed $20 from Gendron, took the truck keys and left, saying he was going to a motel to see his wife.

New Church Union Formed During Marathon Session

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A tired-out general council of the Congregational Christian Churches gave final overwhelming approval Saturday to a merger with the Evangelical and Reformed Church, effective June 25, 1957, under the name of "United Church of Christ."

The action came after 31 exhausting hours of almost-continuous meetings, including an all-night session.

Delegates who had gone sleepless through the night and who kept going strong all day in keen debate wound it up by voting 1,310 to 197 in favor of the precedent setting church union.

PRINCESS ANNE LOST BRIEFLY AT POLO GAME

LONDON (UP) — Five-year-old Princess Anne touched off a flurry of excitement at a polo match Sunday when she broke away from the side of her mother, Queen Elizabeth, and dashed off into the crowd.

Her aunt, Princess Margaret, ran behind her shouting: "Anne, Anne, wait for me!" But the youngster became temporarily lost in the crowd until a woman shouted, "here she is."

The little princess was led back to the royal box while her polo-playing father, the Duke of Edinburgh, rode ahead on horseback to clear a path for her.

Boy 15, Charged In B.C. Slaying

IRVINE'S LANDING, B.C. (CP) — A 15-year-old boy was charged with murder today but RCMP refused to disclose his name or when and where he will come up in court.

They said the boy was arrested in the rifle slaying of Mrs. Mary Flynn, 65, found Friday with two bullets in her body.

"We can't tell you his name because he's a juvenile," police said. "We can't release his name unless the magistrate gives us permission."

The boy was arrested Saturday at nearby Pender Harbor about a day after two neighbors found the widow's body, slumped over in a chair in the log cabin where she lived alone.

The area is about 60 miles northwest of Vancouver, on Sechart Peninsula.

The two women had come to ask Mrs. Flynn to do a baby-sitting job. They found her with part of her jaw shot away and a second bullet hole in the chest.

Police said they could find no motive for the slaying and had not been able to locate the death weapon—believed to be a heavy calibre rifle.

The boy, hunted down by RCMP with a tracking dog and search plane, was taken to Sechart where the charge was read to him.

RCMP also refused to say when or where the boy would come up in court, reporting only: "The case has been adjourned."

THROAT CUT

'Safety' Belt Kills Driver

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A safety belt was the instrument of death for a New York man who died Sunday from car crash injuries.

Kurt Eichler, 62, was riding last Thursday in a 1956 Mercedes-Benz driven by his son, Frank, 26.

The elder Eichler's seat belt was either loose or worked loose as the car crashed into an oncoming auto, police said. The elder Eichler slipped down and the safety belt caught him on the throat, severing his trachea.

Dr. Leonard Berry listed the cause of death as asphyxiation.

John W. Bell, 69, 3420 Seymour, was released from St. Joseph's hospital Sunday after treatment for head cuts suffered when he was in collision with a car while attempting to cross Douglas at Cloverdale. Driver of the car was Edgar R. Nicklin, 1058 Pembroke.

Miss Minnie Gets 20 Years For Embezzling $3 Million

NORFOLK, Va. (UP) — Miss Minnie Mangum, who learned how to do good things for people while teaching a Sunday school class, was sentenced to 20 years in prison today for embezzling almost $3,000,000 so she could help friends and relatives.

Miss Mangum was head bookkeeper for a building and loan association when an argument she had with an employee aroused the suspicions of an examiner.

Judge H. Lawrence Bullock read the sentence. It included 10 years each on two indictments, to run consecutively, and two years each on 11 other indictments, to run concurrently. It was expected she will be eligible for parole after serving five years.

She could have received a sentence totalling 220 years. Miss Minnie stood grim-faced in the crowded courtroom as the sentence was read. She had slipped into court early this morning to elude a swarm of photographers.

After the sentence was read she was led away by three plainclothes officers to go to Richmond to begin serving the state prison immediately. Until today she had been free on bond.

A probation officer read a report prior to the sentencing.

ing and loan association where she worked.

The plump, 52-year-old spinster pleaded guilty to 22 charges of embezzling. She was sentenced in the same courtroom where she admitted a fantastic juggling of the books of Commonwealth Building and Loan Association over nearly a score of years to cover up for much of the shortages which amounted to more than $2,844,000.

Miss Mangum previously was sentenced to 10 years for lying to state officials about the financial condition of the building and loan association where she worked.

Fighters 'Shot by Like Arrowheads'; President Sends Message to Zhukov

By HENRY SHAPIRO, United Press Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW (UP)—Gen. Nathan F. Twining today delivered a personal message from President Eisenhower to Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov and then left Moscow to visit a secret Russian fighter base at Gubinka, 40 miles from Moscow.

Twining, the U.S. air force chief of staff, visited the Gubinka base to inspect the installations but there was no immediate indication whether he would get a close-up look at the seven new jet planes Russia unveiled yesterday on Soviet Air Force Day.

Twining called on Zhukov, the Soviet war minister, on the first personal courtesy call of his look-see at Russian air might and delivered the President's personal thanks for Zhukov's thoughtfulness during the President's illness.

It was understood Zhukov asked Twining to relay his renewed best wishes to the President "from an old soldier and comrade in arms."

The emphasis on the Sunday display was on defence planes but the Soviets hinted they may show off some of their newest jet bombers later.

The planes displayed Sunday: 1. Three different Delta-winged fighters that shot past like arrowheads at a speed estimated at 680 miles per hour.

2. Two types of night fighters, apparently modified versions of the Soviet fighter called the "Flashlight."

3. A new jet day fighter designed by Mikoyan, creator of the MIG-15.

4. A twin-engine transport, presumably powered by turbojets, to be used for military and civilian purposes.

World-Wide Controls Urged

"Gentlemen, that is what we call real disarmament. We had to build up our armament again at the Korean War and we will not disarm again until we are certain of world-wide armaments control."

Nikita S. Khrushchev, leader of the Communist party, toasted President Eisenhower at the reception as a man of honesty who keeps his word.

Ike Has Best Intentions

"When he was Commander-in-Chief he always kept his word. This is what makes him great. We believe he has the best intentions."

Twining and the nine air force aides with him joined in most of the toasts. But they sat out a toast to communist China.

The atmosphere at the five-hour-long party was cordial but there was some light bantering. At one point Khrushchev kidded Twining about the fact the chairman of the American joint

GEN. TWINING
... Messenger for Ike

The air show was the highlight of the program for Twining and other visiting military leaders, but a five-hour reception given by Zhukov gave the visitors more time to talk with the Soviets and to hear Twining uphold the American armaments policies.

"We know what war means," Twining said. "Our country has proved for many years that our people are peaceful."

"We were always late in getting started at war. We demobilized after the last war."

Khrushchev flourished his glass and proposed "to the health of President Eisenhower in the hospital."

"We hold him in our esteem," Khrushchev said. "It is no secret when I say that we do not hold some of the colleagues and associates of the president in high esteem."

"Why is he high in our esteem?"

"His honesty."

New Members Leading Topic At PMs Parley

LONDON (CP)—The admission of new members is expected to be a principal topic at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference opening here Wednesday.

Another key issue will be the planning of a common front towards Russia's "competitive co-existence" challenge to the West.

During the 10-day talks the prime ministers also will discuss world affairs, the economic problem of the sterling area and Commonwealth defence and trade questions.

Several of Britain's colonial territories have made rapid strides toward self-government since the prime ministers last met here in January, 1955, and may become eligible for representation at future conferences.

These are the Federation of Malaya, the Gold Coast in West Africa, and the projected Caribbean Federation of British West Indies Territories.

GUESTS OF EDEN

Prime Ministers Nehru of India and Sidney Holland of New Zealand were guests during the weekend of Prime Minister Eden at his official country home Chequers.

Three of the prime ministers arrived Sunday: Johannes Strijdom of South Africa, Chaudry Mohammed Ali of Pakistan, and Solomon Bandaranaike of Ceylon.

Prime Minister St. Laurent arrived Saturday. Nehru, Holland, Robert Menzies of Australia and Viscount Malvern of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland arrived earlier last week.

Strijdom arrived with an invitation to Britons to visit his country to see for themselves that it was not a "police state" as "stupid stories" in the press alleged.

Bandaranaike said he would tell his Commonwealth colleagues that Ceylon intended to become a republic, probably within two years, but she wished to remain in the Commonwealth.

He said that his government wanted Britain to withdraw troops from her naval and air bases on the island because it was his government's policy to stay clear of power blocs.

Chaudry Mohammed Ali of Pakistan told a press conference he hoped to discuss the Kashmir problem informally with Nehru and other Commonwealth prime ministers interested in the Pakistan-India dispute.

The Canadian prime minister told reporters on his arrival that the chief purpose of the meeting would be to find a way by which the Commonwealth could promote better understanding, security and progress in the world.

BRITISH RULE ENDS—Sun of British Empire has set for perhaps last time in Egypt, and Egyptian military police guard at Ismailia, headquarters of Suez Canal area, is symbolic of change. End of 155 years of British influence came June 13 when last of British garrison left Navy House at Port Said.

that the chief purpose of the meeting would be to find a way by which the Commonwealth could promote better understanding, security and progress in the world.

The representatives of 575,000,000 people were gathering for their seventh post-war conference.

Anti-U.S. Victory Indicated in Iceland

By TOM REEDY

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP)—Iceland's Conservative Independence party, which approves keeping American troops on this strategic Atlantic island's NATO bases, lost ground in Sunday's parliamentary election.

The alliance of Progressives and Social Democrats, sponsors of the drive to oust U.S. forces from the big Keflavik air base and other installations, almost won a clear majority in the Althing (parliament), a preliminary count indicated today.

For the first time in the Althing's 1,000-year history more than 90 per cent of the 90,000 qualified voters cast ballots. The results appeared certain to be another coalition government, since neither the Conservatives nor their opponents captured a clear majority of the parliament's 52 seats.

The preliminary count gave the Conservatives, led by outgoing Premier Olafur Thors, 19 seats. In the old Althing they held 21.

LITTLE USE

PRINCE GEORGE—A corridor through the Alaska panhandle would be of little material benefit to interior British Columbia or the rest of Canada, the Associated Boards of Trade of Central B.C. said in convention here.

The Progressive-Social Democrat coalition appeared to have taken 25 seats, a gain of three. The Communists held on to seven—the same number they had before—and one place was undecided.

The Independents were so-laced, however, by winning five of Reykjavik's eight seats compared with four in the 1953 elections.

The incomplete results showed the Independence party lost their stronghold at Akureyri, Iceland's second largest town.

A total of 27 seats is required for formation of a government by a single party or combine of parties. The Conservatives and Progressives had governed together since 1953 but split when the Progressive last March pushed through the Althing a resolution asking withdrawal of American forces within 18 months. The government has asked for discussion of this with Washington.

The National Defence party, which is anti-Communist but made U.S. withdrawal its sole election appeal, apparently had lost the only two seats it held in the old Althing.

Domestic issues were overshadowed by the intense interest in the demands of the four opposition parties for withdrawal of the 5,000 to 6,000 U.S. army, air force and navy men manning the Keflavik base and radar listening posts linking North American and European defence networks.

Police Blame Bomb For Vancouver Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—A fire which damaged an empty house in North Vancouver early today was believed by firemen to have been started by a bomb thrown from a car.

Firemen said the house was owned by John Jago, now believed living in interior British Columbia. The blast tore out a wall and awakened residents for blocks around.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Canada and Mexico shared about half the $1,614,000,000 spent on foreign travel by Americans in 1955, the commerce department reports. It estimates Canadians accounted for $335,000,000—or 60 per cent—of the $645,000,000 spent by foreign visitors to the U.S.

It was the second bombing in the Vancouver area within a week. In the earlier explosion, the car of former drug squad officer Angus McDonald was destroyed.

Doubled Freight Rates

BY THE LATEST DECISION OF the Transport Board Canada will pay freight rates generally more than double those prevailing nine years ago. The interim increase of 7 per cent now granted to the railways is the seventh since 1947.

If the rates prevailing then are regarded as a base figure of 100 per cent the subsequent increases have followed a steady upward course—21.2 per cent in 1948; 20 per cent in 1950; 12 per cent in 1951; 4.5 per cent in January, 1952, and 9 per cent in December of the same year; 7 per cent in 1953.

This represented a total increase of 197.9 per cent, to which is now added 7 per cent. But the process is not finished.

The railways are demanding an early increase of 15 per cent to cover their wage bill, recently raised by agreement with the non-operating unions. They want more than twice as much revenue as the Transport Board has given them in its interim judgment. In the autumn the railways will argue for and various provincial governments and private interests will argue against the proposed increase of 15 per cent.

The action of the Transport Board in granting an interim raise without hearing any argument to support it is extraordinary but not illegal or unprecedented. The same thing has been done before, though it is obviously a questionable practice which satisfies neither the railways nor their customers.

The railways say they need far more revenue than they have been given. Their customers, as represented by various provincial governments, say that the interim increase, once granted is unlikely to be repealed even if it is proved to be unnecessary.

It will take many months to argue the full case, commencing in the autumn, but we may be sure that freight rates are going up at least 7 per cent, and probably much more. This increase covers only the higher wage bills of the non-operating unions. The operating unions are certain to secure higher wages when their present contract expires and the railways may demand still larger revenues.

The Transport Board does not know just what the wage increases already granted will cost the railways, but the figure will be in the neighborhood of $50 millions a year. Higher pay to the operating unions will raise that total.

No one can reckon in advance how the present interim freight rate award will affect the railways' finances. It does not necessarily mean that their income will be increased by 7 per cent, since everything will depend upon their volume of traffic; and rate increases always tend to reduce that traffic by diverting business to competitive transportation services, mainly freight trucks. The railways, in fact, are encountering the law of diminishing returns as they raise their prices to the consumer.

No layman can possibly understand the complexities of the freight rate structure but most of the provincial governments apparently think that the railways do not require any increase in their present income or, at all events, more than the latest interim increase.

Prairie governments propose to fight any further raise as an unnecessary hardship on their people. The intentions of the British Columbia Government will be awaited with interest. For virtually everything we sell and buy in this province will be affected by higher costs of transportation.

They will be borne by all our products moving into the Canadian market and by all products purchased there. They will be reflected in all our prices and will tend to raise the cost of living.

Already the doubling of these rates in nine years has been a major factor in that cost and one of the largest by-products of a general inflation.

When everyone must pay freight rates, on virtually everything he buys, the Transport Board, after partially pre-judging the railways' case and granting an interim increase without argument, is bound to consider a further increase with extreme care before granting it. The railways are bound to prove their need beyond all question before they receive any more assistance from the consumer. But under the best of circumstances the consumer is bound to pay more for transportation, though the cost will be hidden in the price of goods.

A Pen of Silver

WALTER DE LA MARE IS dead at 81 and a hand which gave silver traceries to the decoration of English letters is stilled.

No anthology of recent English verse is complete without compositions in his clear, rhythmic imagery. Few modern poets could match the cadence of his lines.

In a long life that had been exposed to years of fury in two world wars, that knew the violence of progress's mechanical juggernaut, he retained a gentleness to soothe the worried mind. His fancies brought relief from harsh events of the day and showed a world which still contained its simple beauties.

He will be remembered in kindness and gratitude.

Chou and the Peace Campaign

AT THIS DATE ONE YEAR AGO comparative calm had returned to the Strait of Formosa. Tension had been reduced. The threat of a global war triggered by hostilities between Mao Tse-tung's forces and those of Chiang Kai-shek and his allies was diminishing.

As another early summer comes to south China, Prime Minister Chou En-lai sees greater hopes for his "peaceful freeing" of Formosa.

"The people of Taiwan want to come back into the fold—even those who follow Chiang Kai-shek see that China is growing and prospering," says Chou. "They are Chinese too, and if they make some contribution to peaceful liberation they will be welcomed and can keep their positions."

This does not mean that Red China has renounced entirely its willingness to fight for Formosa. His people, the Prime Minister states, would never be frightened by "a policy of brink of war as Dulles said." But Mr. Dulles himself is not "brinkling" so heavily these days and Mr. Chou apparently believes his own peace offensive is gaining headway on Formosa.

Recently he has not repeated his determination to take the island by force if other means fail. His reticence on that point indicates the Red Chinese leader's belief that his other approach to the same objective is effective.

Time, it appears, is on the side of Chou En-lai. While the Chiang Kai-shek forces remain isolated on Formosa they have restricted ground in which to grow. Earlier reports, moreover, have indicated increasing defections from the Nationalist ranks by Chinese who wish to return to the mainland. The prospective Taiwan springboard seems to be losing its spring.

A Restive Middle Class

IT IS DIFFICULT TO VISUALIZE the conventional British middle class in terms of a conventional revolution. The tightly-rolled umbrella and the bowler hat are scarcely the armaments expected on the other side of the barricade.

Yet, in what appears to be quiet desperation, Britain's middle class seems now on the verge of rebellion if not revolution.

Its members are caught between the strength and wage-bargaining power of labor and the heavy weight of taxation. Between the two the middle class is being squeezed thin.

Signs of resistance are appearing at the polls. Disappointed with Conservative failures to ease their position, they are turning from the Tory vote—as evidenced in the greatly reduced majority given a Government candidate who just managed to win the traditional Conservative seat of Tonbridge.

There are other indications of restiveness. And with its exposure, there is an appreciation among astute politicians that it could be turned to account. Unless the Eden Conservatives do more than express their hopes of doing something for this strata of British society, quite possibly Labor might spring up as its champion.

At all events, the conventional picture of a British middle class going quietly and decently about its business—even if that business is extinction—needs to be revised. There are limits to the process of self-effacement.

With Fingers Crossed

BY VICTOR MACKIE, From Ottawa

PRIME Minister St. Laurent is not expected back in the Commons until the week of July 9. He was nervous about being absent from the Commons during the two weeks that he will be in London attending the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' conference. He had reason to be worried because in his absence Trade and Commerce Minister Howe is scheduled to carry on as acting prime minister. Mr. Howe is not noted for his tact or diplomacy, and Mr. St. Laurent wanted no repetition of the tumultuous scenes that blew up in the Commons during the pipeline debate. He left for the conference with his fingers crossed, hoping that all would remain quiet in the Commons at home, and depending upon House Leader Walter Harris to keep things relatively under control.

Mackie

Supply

When Mr. Harris brought forward another interim supply measure the other day, he did not make the move without first taking "soundings" to determine whether the Progressive Conservatives and CCF'ers were prepared to block the bill. His enquiries brought encouraging reports. The Opposition had no intention of blocking that supply bill having already allowed the Government to get its previous interim supply bill through the House to meet civil service salaries on the June 15 and 30 pay days.

The new supply bill will provide funds for pay cheques up to July 15. The Conservatives moved a want-of-confidence motion on going into supply. This was the fifth of six such motions now allowed in a session under the rule changes adopted a year ago.

Morning Sittings

Morning sittings of the Commons are expected to be started shortly—possibly early in July. The Government hopes the session will end with the end of July. The Conservatives see it going into August.

Election

Now that all possibility of a summer election has vanished the private members of all parties want to close up the House and go home for the summer. The uncertainty of when the House will rise has upset the households of most of the members.

They had fully expected that in accordance with the expressed desires of Prime Minister St. Laurent the present session would not go beyond the end of June. Most of the members had made plans for summer vacations with their families commencing in July.

The vague threats of the Progressive Conservatives that they are prepared to sit until the end of August has alarmed the backbenchers in particular. They see their summer going down the drain. It is an axiom on parliament hill that the Government opens the session but the Opposition ends the session.

Opposition

One of the characteristics of the overwhelming majority of Government members that emerged from the recent pipeline debate was their lack of appreciation of the role of the Opposition in the House of Commons. There were mutterings of "obstructionists" and worse, from the Liberal benches as the Progressive Conservative and CCF members carried out their fight to force a prolonged study of the pipeline legislation in parliament.

Probably the Government members' failure to appreciate the function of the opposition is due to the fact that W. G. "Gib" Weir, the Liberal whip and parliamentary assistant to the prime minister, is the only member in the Government benches who has sat in opposition in the House of Commons.

Proper Role

Members of the Opposition hammered home for the benefit of Government members in the Commons recently, that the duty of the Opposition was to oppose. A veteran member with the CCF, Angus MacInnis, who has indicated his intention to retire said: "What in the world do you think the Opposition was sent here for, to help the Government? No, they were sent here to oppose and if the Opposition did not oppose, the Government would criticize them."

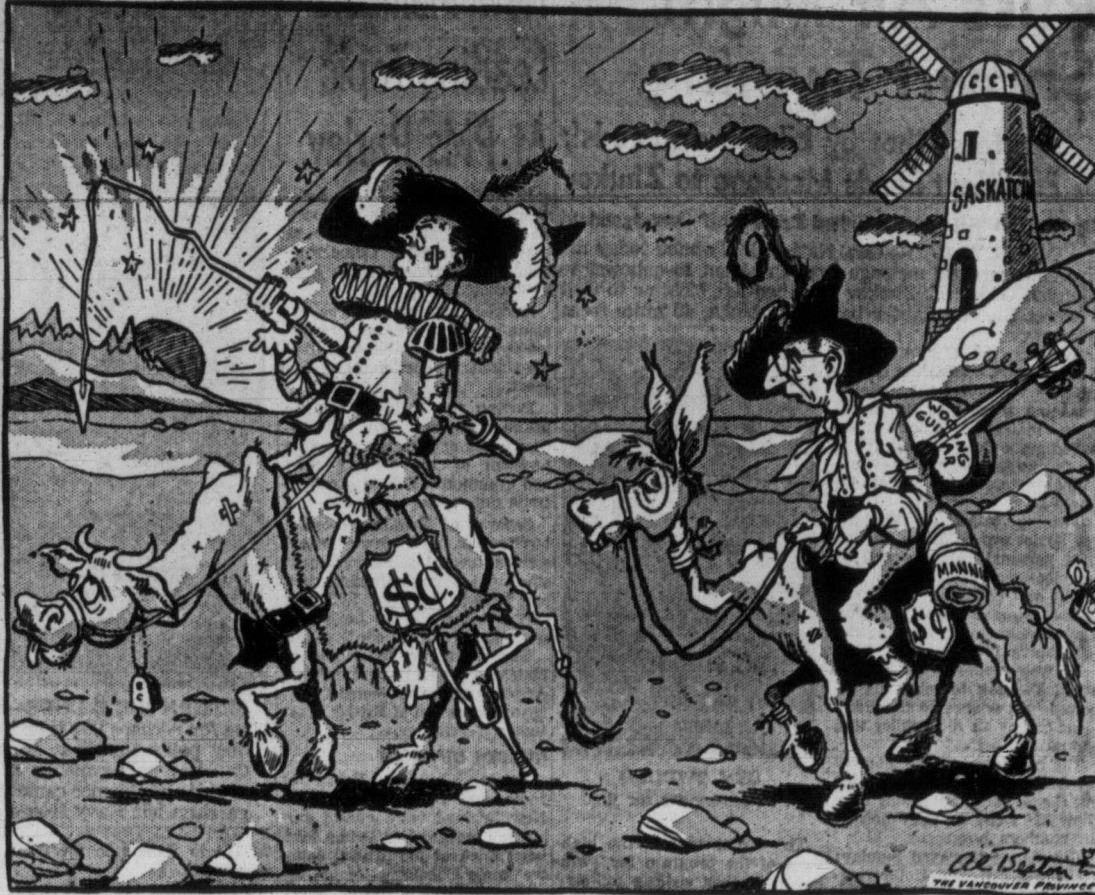

Said Alistair Stewart, CCF, Winnipeg member: "It is our bounden duty when we think the Government wrong to frustrate it in every way possible within the rules."

Telling a Story in the Home Movie

By DAVID BROCK

SIX months from today is Christmas. Let that be our Positive Thought for Today. Well-begun is half-done, and the first six months are the hardest. Incidentally, I was trying to think the other day of a word that is the opposite of Christmas, and a burnt-out Christmas veteran suggested that the opposite of Christmas is peacetime.

"SALARY EXPECTED"

MORE and more Help Wanted advertisements tell me to state what salary I expect if I get the job. This is a silly question. The salary I get will depend on three things: (1) what the boss usually pays similar hirelings; (2) what he thinks I am worth to him; or (3) what the firm can afford. Or a combination of these three things. In first applying for the job, I don't know the facts about any one of the three... how could I? And it is unfair of the firm's hiring-and-firing expert to ask me to cheat myself by asking too little, or to destroy my chance of employment by asking too much. The man who writes such an advertisement is either a knave or a fool. I must tell him so in answering his ad. He will admire my frankness.

HOW TO ENTERTAIN

I HAVE here a folder from a film and camera company, telling me how to improve my home movies, so as to make them TELL A STORY. If that bare suggestion makes you shudder, you are a home-movie hater after my own heart. But there is worse to follow, so read on.

FROM WASHINGTON

(This is a personal report from Stewart Alsop to his brother, Joseph Alsop, who has returned from abroad.)

DEAR JOE: You will find that the President's second serious illness in nine months completely overshadows the political scene here at home. Indeed, you will feel, I think, as though you were hearing a cracked record playing over and over the same refrain that became so familiar last fall and winter: "Will he run? Will he run? Will he run?" But there is a difference this time. You remember how, in the first weeks after the heart attack, it was universally assumed that the President would withdraw. This time, you will find, almost everybody assumes that the President will stay in the race.

Alsop

Report to a Partner

By STEWART ALSOP

You remember also how, as the weeks and months passed after the heart attack, it seemed more and more likely that the President would run, until his announcement in February came as no surprise at all. "I wonder if the same thing might happen in reverse?"

As I wrote a few days ago, the Republican high command expresses absolute confidence, not only that the President will run, but that he will so announce very shortly.

Announcement

It is of course vitally important to the Republican leadership that the President end the current speculation by making his "positive" announcement as soon as possible. But Jim Hagerty swears that the President has given no hint of his intentions. So there may well be more than a pinch of wishful thinking in the confidence I reported.

Meanwhile, the President himself, as he lies stricken for the second time in nine months, must be thinking long and hard whether he can carry on for four more years.

As you know, we newspapermen have all become amateur physicians since the President's heart attack and operation. But it is not necessary to go to a medical school to understand a few harsh facts.

Coronary thrombosis is a serious disease. So is ileitis, especially within a few months of a coronary. There is a risk of recurrence in both diseases. And, in the President's case the risk is, obviously, compounded.

Not Insurable

A few days ago, we got a letter from an insurance executive, from which I quote excerpts:

"Mr. Eisenhower is not an insurable risk on any basis because of the coronary attack. . . . Expectation of life according to the standard mortality table would be about 4.30 years. Now take the recent ileitis. . . . here expectation of life is 3.54 years. What the life expectation is in combination we don't know. We all know that while the mortality table is quite an accurate guide there are people who outlive it. Mr. Eisenhower will get more than normal care. (But) if he is not an acceptable risk for life insurance on not one but two counts, is he an acceptable candidate for the Presidency?"

After the President's heart attack, you remember, we discussed at length the problem of writing about matters that had both profound political implications and painful personal implications. It is repugnant to write in cold statistical terms about the life expectancy of a well-loved human being.

But when the office of the Presidency is involved, we agreed, the risk that its occupant may die in office, or become incapacitated, simply must be considered.

The risk is always there, of course, because we are all mortal. But it is irresponsible to pretend that the risk is not especially great in the President's case. Perhaps the risk is worth taking.

You and I have been critical of the Eisenhower administration, particularly in the defence field (and you should read the testimony before the Symington committee—we owe an apology to our readers for having been blithering optimists). But it is true, as you wrote at the time of the President's heart attack, that "Dwight D. Eisenhower's greatest single contribution has been bringing us all back to a sense of true American style."

Fine Shape?

Very great risks may be worth taking, in order to continue that contribution. A candidate for the Presidency need not necessarily be "an acceptable risk for life insurance."

But I think you will be angered, as I have been, by the attempt to propagate the myth that the President is already in fine shape, that he has his hands firmly on the reins of government, that the very serious operation he has undergone has been good for him as a nice long vacation, and so on.

Where so much is at stake, the facts must be faced up to. No doubt the President, as he lies in his hospital bed, or sits in his wheel chair, is facing them squarely.

IN FIRST

When Sir Max Beerbohm first came into the Savile Club with that moustache various members kept hurrying up to peer at him and then say, "Hello, Max, I hardly recognize you since you've grown that moustache." At last Max grew tired of this greeting and the next member who came peering up to him he anticipated: "Hello. . . . I hardly recognized you since I've grown this moustache."

—Sir Georgian MacKenzie talking on the BBC about Sir Max Beerbohm who died recently.

Points of View

I'M GOING to call him Mr. Singh. He's an old East Indian who comes to see us sometimes about jobs connected with a farm.

He's not what you would call an educated man, in an academic sense. But he's a fine old man with a craggy, kindly face that I would like to paint or carve if I were a creative type of individual.

Last summer, when my husband was in hospital in the middle of the haying season, Mr. Singh came out to see whether the boys and I were making out alright, and to offer help if we needed it.

I'll never forget his kindness on that occasion.

Neither will I forget a bitterly cold morning last November.

Mr. Singh dropped in on business, and while he and my husband talked in the warmth of the kitchen, another East Indian's name came into the conversation.

He was at the Sikh Temple, Mr. Singh said. It was a special celebration, he explained, and his friend would be at the temple all day.

"Not your God," he said easily. "But that doesn't make any difference. God and goodness. It's all the same. The name doesn't matter."

Since then, I've often thought of Mr. Singh's attitude towards religion. I thought of it especially when I read a news item about a visiting preacher in Vancouver who told his listeners that the church they belonged to was the only true one because it practised total immersion. And he quoted biblical chapter and verse to prove his point.

To me, the viewpoint of Mr. Singh is the one to emulate, and the one most suited to these times.

For, as the world grows smaller through improved transportation, we are going to see more of the other peoples in the world. (Think how, already, we mix far more than we did 100 years ago.)

We are going to have to share the world with these people. And share it peacefully since war has become too dangerous in this atomic age.

I suggest that, to make the sharing easier, we must minimize religious differences, and seek instead to find some common ground among the world's major faiths.

I suggest that the time is therefore past when the people of any one religion can go around claiming that they have the monopoly on goodness and on truth.

Some of the bitterest wars in history have been fought over religion. We could have other such wars if too many people are too militant and bigoted over the religion of their choice.

To me there is hope in the viewpoint of Mr. Singh and those who think as he does.

There is danger in the other viewpoint.

And it seems to me that this is a matter we should ponder very seriously indeed. Especially if we are bringing up children who, as adults, will live in a world quite different from the one we knew in our youth.

Diet for Arthritis

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation.

Every week many persons ask me for a diet for arthritis. As I have said many times in this column, experts on arthritis rarely prescribe a diet unless the patient is too fat or too thin. There are a number of quack or freak diets for arthritis, but I am not interested in them. I have never heard of a scientifically-prescribed diet which would affect the condition of the joints, except in the case of gout.

Naturally, anyone who is much overweight is putting terrible strain on the joints of his legs and, particularly, the knees, the ankles and the feet. I often think of the truck-driver who one day brought me his very stout wife with painful flat feet, painful bulging ankles, and painful knees. He said disgustedly, "The trouble with the missus is that she, who started out in life with a one-ton truck chassis, has piled ten tons onto it. It just won't carry it." How correct he was! A professor of medicine or English could not have summed up the case more clearly!

ADVERTISING "CLINICS" OR HOSPITALS

People keep asking me if they should go to some advertising "clinic" or hospital where men claim to cure some special type of disease. Usually, I am able to say that I have seen several persons who were mistreated or swindled at the place asked about. Certainly, a man takes his life in his hands when he goes to a place in which the management is not in the hands of a fine lay board and a number of fine, able and ethical physicians.

To show what goes on in some of these places: a patient came to me saying he had been to a "clinic" for the treatment of piles. The men there told him that he had a very bad case of piles that any day would turn into cancer. For $500 in advance they guaranteed a cure. Much frightened, the patient came to me. Unable to see any piles, I sent the man to one of America's leading rectal experts who, also, could not see anything wrong, or anything to operate on!

If the man had fallen for the scheme, the "clinic" people doubtless after a so-called operation—a little cut in his skin—would have got from him an affidavit saying that they had cured him of cancer.

All laymen should remember that fine big clinics and fine hospitals do not have to advertise for patients. They have all the patients they can take care of. Usually the place that advertises has to do so because there are too few satisfied patients who will refer their friends or come back themselves. Also, no good physician will let his patients go there.

BURNING SKIN IN OLDER PERSONS

I think, usually, older persons who suddenly develop a burning patch of skin that feels as if it were in scalding water have had a little stroke. I have seen many of these persons who went on with the burning for years in spite of much treatment with sedatives and other drugs.

People ask if this disease is likely to spread or to injure them greatly, and my reply is that I doubt it. Why? Because I have known many persons who had had such burnings for years without coming to any bad end. Unfortunately, I know of no good treatment.

VALUE OF BREAST FEEDING

I always marvel when I see a physician refuse to let a mother nurse her infant for even a few days, because I have long ready that the colostrum, or first watery milk secreted by the breast, contains valuable antibodies designed to protect the infant from illness and death. I have read that a calf that is not allowed to get this colostrum is likely soon to die of dysentery.

Now comes Dr. Berry Campbell and W. E. Petersen, of the University of Minnesota, who report experiments on cows that showed that germs in a nursing calf's mouth go into the mother's udder and there produce within a few hours antibodies that come back out in the milk to protect the calf against infection with the particular germ. If this wonderful process takes place also in a mother's breast, we old-fashioned doctors will have an additional argument for the return to the nourishment of infants—breast feeding.

CANCER CURED MORE OFTEN

Today, as we hear so much about the greater incidence in man, it is good to hear, also, that cancer is being cured much more often.

As Surgeon-General Scheele, of the U.S. Public Health Service, just told the General Practitioners in Washington, D.C., with the help of earlier diagnosis and better treatment, in the last 10 years the average rate of cure of cancer has gone up from about 15 per cent to about 50 per cent. And in many cases in which the patient comes too late for a cure, his life can be prolonged and he can be made more comfortable.

Small Birds Add Sparkle To Color-Splashed Show

The extra grey hairs were justified—it was a great show.

In the closing hours Saturday evening of the flower show held by the Victoria Horticultural Society I made an attempt to assess the feeling of the show.

It seemed to me that those responsible for the organizing and running of the event had relaxed their tension and were thoroughly enjoying the displays and the crowds.

And crowds there certainly were, from the moment of opening on Friday until after the normal 9 o'clock closing on Saturday.

As usual, the unexpected angles developed in the results, so that in some cases the carefully tended blooms met stiff competition and lost out, while a chance bloom discovered in the garden at the last moment won a blue ribbon.

As usual, also, there were many notebooks and pencils in use, many questions asked and answered, and much satisfaction in viewing so much beauty of color and form.

Delightful interludes were created quite spontaneously by a small bird who came frequently to sit on the high window ledge and sing. Sometimes the soft accompaniment of the electric organ, or just as happily alone, the little bird's performances were repeated throughout the two days.

A great congregation of gardeners, old and new, the crowds were a fitting tribute to the who added a "few more grey hairs" in the show's preparation.

The board also recommended denial of licences for radio stations in Calgary, St. James, Man.; Burlington and Welland, Ont., and Toronto.

LEGION HOLDS WHEELCHAIR INDUCTION

J. A. McKinnon, 1172 Greenwood, became the first "wheelchair member" of the Esquimalt branch Canadian Legion in a special ceremony at his home Friday.

Partially paralyzed as a result of the Second World War, the 34-year-old Esquimalt resident was unable to attend an initiation ceremony at the Legion Hall. So the Legion came to him, in the persons of Alfred Allnut, branch president; J. E. Carey, secretary, and five executive members.

'SPEEDOGRAPH' EVIDENCE PRODUCED

Guilty, Your Honor, But Not As Much as the Mounties Claim

DUNCAN—Donald Frederick Yates, chip-truck driver, pleaded guilty in police court here last week to driving at more than 50 miles per hour, then cast some doubts on RCMP checking methods.

Ladysmith police testified that he had driven at speeds up to and including 65 miles per hour.

After pleading guilty, Yates produced a record from the speedograph mounted on his truck, which showed that his maximum speed had been 51 miles per hour.

When Magistrate A. C. Sutton asked if it was correct, Yates said he had had a speed check by Lake Cowichan police before appearing in court, which had shown an accurate reading at 50 miles per hour.

He also said the truck was incapable of reaching 65 miles per hour.

He was fined $20 and his licence was ordered endorsed.

The speedograph is a device that keeps a constant record of all speeds for checking later by owners and operators.

'Anti-Farmer' Socreds Hit By Strachan

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — Robert Strachan, provincial CCF leader, says the Social Credit government of B.C. is "an anti-farmer government."

Mr. Strachan, just returned from the Saskatchewan election scene, told a dinner in his honor here Saturday night that B.C. Social Credit leaders campaigning in the Prairie province had no time for the problems of the B.C. farmer.

He said the re-elected CCF government had helped farmers in Saskatchewan through rural electrification, land reclamation, drainage and community pastures.

The B.C. government spent only $2,000,000 of its $258,000,000 budget on agriculture, Mr. Strachan said, while Saskatchewan budgeted $5,000,000 out of $87,000,000.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Lew Owen Welty, aged 12, of Wichita, Kansas for his question:

What Is a Rain Crow?
In North America, we say that spring arrives with the first robin. The English, too, have a robin. But he is no good as a calendar. The small, chubby fellow with his orange-red breast is a year-round resident. He is no kin to our large, thrush-like redbreast who usually travels with the seasons. To the English, spring returns with the first cuckoo.

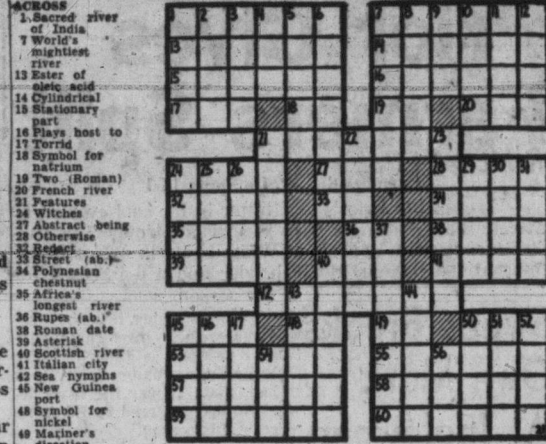

Beethoven and Delius have embroidered his soft, sweet voice into music. Come April, when the English hear that whoo-coo, whoo-coo in the woods, they know that winter is over. The bird of spring has arrived to coax the buds from damp and dripping branches. The shy, speckled bird sings as he flies and he sings in rain or sunshine.

The North American rain crow is a relative to the European cuckoo, a member of the family Cuculidae. He may be a black-billed or a yellow-billed bird. His song is a sad cluck-cluck, cluck, cow, cow, cow. But he is one of the 130 cousins that make up the world-wide, globe-trotting cuckoo family. He is no relative to the crow.

The cuckoos of tropical Malay are gaudy of plumage and big as hens. Others are drab and no bigger than sparrows. The European cuckoo is blueish-grey and speckled with brown. He looks so like a sparrow hawk that smaller birds often gang up and mob him.

Our cuckoo looks like a lovely, long-tailed dove. There are two cousins in America, one with black and one with yellow bill. Both are snow white below and brownish above. The wings of the 'yellow-billed cuckoo are tinted with russet.

Our Mrs. Cuckoo is a far better mother than her European cousin. She can build the best nest of the whole cuckoo family. She makes it of sticks, straws and rootlets, then lines it with springy pine needles and soft lichen. It is well hidden in a thicket, an orchard or edge of a woods. There will be from two to four eggs, delicate blue-green and sometimes freckled. The whole family feeds on insects and caterpillars. Our cuckoo dines on bugs that dine with the seasons.

MYSTERY THRILLER

Van Johnson, as a successful American playwright, relates his frustrations in trying to solve a crime that he had accidentally overheard being planned in a local London pub. Lovely Vera Miles is his sympathetic listener in this scene from Twentieth Century-Fox's exciting mystery thriller, "23 Paces to Baker Street," now at the Dominion Theatre.

'BLACKLISTING' CONFIRMED

Hollywood, Radio TV Have Ban on 'Reds'

—NEW YORK (AP)—The Fund for the Republic Sunday found blacklisting for political beliefs a widespread practice in the movie, radio and television industries, but much less prevalent in the theatre.

In a two-volume, 599-page report, the fund said that in Hollywood blacklisting is "almost universally accepted as a fact of life."

"All the studios are now unanimous in their refusal to hire persons identified as Communist party members who have not subsequently testified in full before the House un-American activities committee," the report said.

"The studios are equally adamant about not hiring witnesses who have relied upon the Fifth Amendment (against self-recrimination) before congressional committees."

The report found that blacklisting was "more complicated" in the radio and television fields than in Hollywood, where the hiring is concentrated in five or six major studios.

Turning to the legitimate theatre, the report found "there is no organized blacklisting on Broadway," although the "normal criteria of personal choice—including politics—do operate to some extent."

The report, based on a study begun in September, 1954, was prepared for the fund by John Cogley, 40, former editor of the Commonwealth, Roman Catholic lay magazine, and a staff of 10 reporters.

The fund, currently under fire by some congressmen, was organized as a separate entity in 1953 with a $15,000,000 endowment by the Ford Foundation. The fund and its president, Robert M. Hutchins, frequently have been attacked as being "soft" toward communism.

Hutchins has said the fund "was organized to study and disclose the facts about all threats to civil liberties—including communism."

Millionaire Writer, Arlen, Dies at 61

NEW YORK (AP)—Michael Arlen, whose novel The Green Hat was a best seller of the 1920s, died Saturday night at his home after a long illness. He was 61.

Arlen was said to be one of the few men to become a millionaire by his writings.

He adapted The Green Hat as a play with Katherine Cornell in the leading role of Irish March. It also was made into a movie starring Greta Garbo.

Though he wrote and published books and short stories before and after his 1924 hit, he never was able to match The Green Hat's success.

The Green Hat dealt with licence and adultery among the British upper classes and was considered very daring for its time. Arlen made $500,000 in book royalties from this novel.

NAVY, ARMY MUSEUM PROPOSED FOR CASTLE

Location of a naval and military museum at Craigdarroch Castle has been recommended by former city alderman, Brent Murdoch.

Commenting on reports naval authorities seek to have the Esquimalt Naval Maritime Museum moved to the city, he said the city "practically gave the castle to the school board and the school board could give it back."

He felt that the administrative offices of the board could be relocated with provincial assistance. A major in the militia, Ald. Murdoch, felt both military and naval history should be preserved in the

New Report Of Royal Rift In Netherlands

AMSTERDAM. The Netherlands (AP)—Smiling pictures of the Dutch royal couple blossomed on the front pages of Holland's newspapers today. But in West Germany, Hamburg's der Spiegel came up with a new report of domestic trouble between Queen Juliana and her husband, Prince Bernhard.

The Hamburg magazine said Bernhard may leave the Dutch court unless it is friendlier to his mother, German Princess Armgard zur Lippe-Biesterfeld. The magazine claimed the princess had not been "too well received in the Dutch court in the past."

Der Spiegel said that Bernhard would move to his mother's home unless she is invited to the garden party the court traditionally gives on June 29 to celebrate his birthday. The magazine added that Crown Princess Beatrix, 18-year-old eldest daughter of Juliana and Bernhard, and 17-year-old Princess Irene would join their father.

LEGS AMPUTATED—Peter Sinclair, 7, lies in a Vancouver hospital with both legs amputated above the knees after he was hit by a railroad car. Peter, one of six children, lost his father three years ago in a logging accident. The Canadian Legion, Active and Lions Clubs have guaranteed to fit him with artificial legs.

$15,000 Blaze Wipes Out Mill

Sooke Firemen Fight Four Hours; Three-Man Plant Not Insured

SOOKE—Fire of undetermined origin Sunday afternoon destroyed the Beaver sawmill on Grant Road, just off the West Coast Road. Loss is estimated in the neighborhood of $15,000.

Owner Alfred Nix of Sooke said no insurance was carried. He has not made plans for the future. Three men were employed at the mill.

The blaze was noticed by a neighbor, Mrs. O. Linell, between 3.15 and 3.30 p.m. She reported to the fire department and notified Mr. Nix.

Fire Chief Don Morrison and nine of his crew from Sooke Volunteer Fire Department attended and fought the blaze for four hours. They managed to save the log deck and most of the lumber stacked around the mill, but the mill proper was destroyed.

ROOFS WETTED DOWN

Damage was limited to the immediate mill area. Residents assisted firemen by wetting down roofs of nearby houses and buildings.

A can of milk was instrumental in saving a large barn on the farm of J. Perestam.

Fire broke out on the roof of the barn, 300 feet from the burning mill. A neighbor, J. A. Brooks, and his son, assisted by a passing motorist, ran to the barn, where the motorist jumped to the roof and extinguished the fire with a can of milk from inside the barn handed to him by the others.

The Perestam family was at church at the time. Const. Don Knight, RCMP.

School Bids Exceed Allocation

DUNCAN—All three tenders opened by the Cowichan District School Board for the new secondary school in the southern part of the district were above the $225,000 appropriated by the board for the building.

Lowest tender was for $252,583 submitted by the A. & B. Construction Limited, Nanaimo.

The board has passed all tenders along to the department of education for decision. Subject to approval by the department, the board awarded the one-room Westholme School contract to R. H. Clements, Chemainus, whose bid of $13,768 was the lowest of three received.

The board received notice that the department of education did not approve of the site selected for the proposed three-room Tansor School. A special sites committee of the board will resume its search for a site in the area where the Cowichan Lake Road crosses the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway.

BELVIDERE, Ill. (AP) — Shattered boards from a fairground fence killed a spectator at a harness racing program Sunday. Two other spectators were injured. The track's pace car went out of control and crashed into a wooden fence. The impact sent boards flying into the grandstand.

Italian Red Chief Blasts Khrushchev

ROME (Reuters) — Italy's major left-wing parties are divided by a deeper rift than at any other time since the Second World War following the bitter attack of Socialist leader Pietro Nenni on Russia's Communist party chief, Nikita Khrushchev, and the Soviet political structure.

In a 5,000-word article published by the official Socialist party newspaper Saturday, Nenni, Stalin peace prize winner, pledged his party to try to bring about socialism in Italy only "with the consent of the majority of the people."

In a scathing examination of Khrushchev's report to the 20th Soviet party congress in Moscow, he wrote: "It was known that the dictatorship of the proletariat had changed into the dictatorship of the Communist party."

"Now we learn that the dictatorship of the Communist party became the personal dictatorship of Stalin. But we are not told how or why that came about."

FIRST STEP

"We do not even know how the present Soviet ruling group reached its conclusions, whether it is unanimous on the subject or divided—and, if divided, on what and why?"

Political observers saw the article as Nenni's first open step towards trying to seize leadership of the entire Italian left wing, which at present includes about 10,000,000 out of a total of 25,000,000.

Meanwhile, one authoritative member of the party's directorate, Senator Mauro Cacciari, reminded the Socialists that they were still bound to the Communists by a "pact of united action."

TRUCK BOMBED — An armed guard was placed around the home of Vancouver police officer Angus Macdonald after his panel truck was ripped apart in an early-morning bombing. Macdonald was to resign from the force to become an RCAF security guard but applied for reinstatement to "get those guys." On the narcotic squad for two years, Macdonald said he believes the bomb was laid by some of the more than 200 addicts he arrested in that time.

Million Drivers In B.C. by 1965 Said Possible

British Columbia's highways of 10 years ago would never have handled the number of motor vehicles now in use, says the B.C. motor vehicles branch. Figures show that licensed motor vehicles in the province increased from 89,658 in 1932 to 405,578 in 1955.

A continuation of the present rate of increase will mean 500,000 vehicles in 1958, 600,000 by 1960 and 875,000 in 1965. Some 500,000 persons now hold driver's licences in B.C. The year 1960 may produce a total of more than 700,000, and by 1965 1,000,000 drivers is not beyond possibility.

$100,000 Program Planned To Sell B.C. Farm Produce

Bennett Coming to Aid Of Frost-Hit Farmers

A four-month advertising and public relations campaign to help B.C. farmers sell their products on the home market was launched today by Premier Bennett.

The campaign will cost the government $100,000 derived from a supplementary agricultural estimate and will employ the slogan "Prosperous Agriculture means a Prosperous British Columbia."

Mr. Bennett said newspapers, radio, outdoor advertising and farm papers will be used to further the campaign which will continue until Oct. 15.

Advertising will be handled by a Vancouver firm of advertising consultants.

"Regardless of their political views, we know we can count on the press to back us in this campaign," Mr. Bennett said. "We shall also appeal to housewives to ask if vegetables were grown in B.C. before buying them. It will be one of the most public-spirited, non-political campaigns this government has ever launched."

SUFFERED BADLY

Mr. Bennett added that farmers enjoy "greater prosperity" in B.C. than anywhere else. But they had suffered one of the worst winters in history and needed government help in marketing their produce.

"We shall also help them to get more feed if present surveys show that they need it."

He said the campaign will concentrate on publicizing the availability of such B.C. products as fluid milk, poultry and roasting chickens, turkeys, vegetables, potatoes, tree fruits and grass-fed beef.

The man on the land in this province represents an annual production turnover of $142,000,000, the premier said, "but his take home pay is only $50,000,000. This makes agriculture third among the province's basic industries."

He emphasized that B.C. has a farm population of 115,000 on nearly 26,000 farms and the bulk of this population lives within easy access of the main metropolitan markets.

U.S. COMPETITION

"These farmers have a ready market for their goods but they have to compete with importations from the south—often landed here at ruinous prices," said the premier.

He said B.C. farmers have invested more than $400,000,000 in their land, buildings, implements, machinery and livestock, and produce a wider variety of crops than any other Canadian province.

Cabinet Sanction Hoped Friday For Civic Schemes

Mayor Percy Sourabh hopes to meet with the B.C. cabinet Friday to discuss four matters of civic business which require government sanction.

These are a grant to the Victoria Symphony Society of $2,500, the extent of Victoria benefits under the Capital District Improvement Commission scheme, approval of six-day shopping in Victoria and the matter of Goldstream and Thetis Lake Parks which were offered to the province earlier for development.

The mayor said he was advised the cabinet will meet Tuesday and the four Victoria matters are "at the top of the list."

Special horticultural crops, including flowers, bulbs and holly had an annual turnover value of $4,000,000. Dairying was the chief agricultural crop in B.C. with a 1955 production worth $31,000,000.

"But in spite of this, B.C. has the lowest per capita milk consumption of any province in Canada," Mr. Bennett said.

"This is a great pity. Milk is a healthful beverage and we should drink lots more of it. We plan to assist the dairy farmer by publicizing fluid milk and raising the milk consumption of every man, woman and child in the province."

He said poultry came second to dairying in B.C. and its eggs and poultry meats are renowned throughout Canada for their high quality. Grass-fed beef from the Cariboo and the North Okanagan and Kootenays was so popular that $14,000,000 worth finds its way into B.C. homes.

Of all its products, B.C.'s main export was tree fruits with McIntosh and Delicious finding their way to most states of the union, to Britain and right across Canada.

Mr. Bennett said British Columbians are purchasing "more and more" apples from the irrigated lands of the Okanagan and Kootenays. Tree fruit growers realize between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 annually from the sale of orchard products.

ELECTION SMILE

Mr. Bennett smiled and shook his head when asked if the campaign had any relation to the possibility of an election this fall.

"This is not a political matter," he said, "it is vital to the welfare of this province."

Wrong Type 'Lung' Blamed In Drowning

City Youth Victim At Prospect Lake

The breathing apparatus worn by 20-year-old Maurice Goodmanson, 20 Gorge East, when he drowned in Prospect Lake Saturday afternoon was a type used for breathing in smoke-filled rooms.

An investigation by RCN School of Diving experts showed that for underwater breathing purposes, the lung should have had a further adjustment which Goodmanson neglected.

Called a closed-circuit lung, the apparatus should have had an opening in one of its canisters sealed up. In smoke, the chemical-filled canister filtered air and mixed it with oxygen carried in another canister.

When in contact with moisture the chemical produces a noxious gas, which it is thought may have made the diver sick underwater, which resulted in his death by drowning.

His death was the fourth due to drowning in Greater Victoria this year.

Coroner Dr. E. C. Hart said there will be no inquest since evidence shows the drowning was accidental. Only the victim had made adjustments to the breathing gear.

The youth was using the lung, of a type formerly used by navy skin divers, for the first time and was being timed by his father, Thomas T. Goodmanson, who stood on the shore with 17-year-old Ivor Goodmanson, also an amateur diver.

DOWN EIGHT FEET

They were at the public bathing beach on East Lake Road where the shore slopes gradually into the water. The drowning victim went down about eight feet, 20-30 feet from shore and after he did not resurface after 15 minutes, his brother went in after him.

Ivor pulled Maurice ashore and Saanich fire department rescuer crew was called at 4:44 p.m. They worked on him until told by police doctor Lloyd McEwen at 5:20 further effort would be useless.

Mr. Goodmanson said his son had worked on the diving lung for a considerable time before testing it. An earlier dive Saturday afternoon had lasted five minutes, and Maurice remained within sight of shore all the time.

Ivor had a similar diving unit which he had not used. There are reported to be many of the same type in use here or easily obtainable from surplus navy stores.

It is believed Maurice purchased the lung privately. He had used one previously through borrowing it from a friend.

A former Victoria High School student, Maurice was an electrical apprentice at HMC Dockyard.

Although they have been declared obsolete by the navy, the lungs were "supposed to be a good device during the time they were used," Saanich police Const. Bob Peterson said.

Wurtele Offers Land Premier Calls To Keep Navy Museum Yarder Fracas Publicity Bid

Esquimalt reeve and former naval officer, Cmdr. A. C. Wurtele, today expressed indignation at the suggestion the Naval Maritime Museum should be moved to Victoria.

"There is only one logical place and that's Esquimalt," he stated. "It existed long before Victoria."

He said he would recommend to his council that the navy be offered a donation of property adjoining Memorial park on Esquimalt road. He said he had discussed the matter with Rear Admiral Hugh Pullen.

Following a city council visit to the museum last week, it was learned at city hall a move is afoot to relocate the museum closer to the district centre. It had been suggested the museum be taken over by the city and the province as a tourist attraction.

At present the one-year-old museum is located in an old two-story brick building near HMC Dockyard. It is crowded and lacks sufficient parking space. Naval officials feel it could be doubled in size if new premises were available, and stated the navy would turn the museum lock, stock and barrel to other sponsors.

The premier declined comment on Gillespie's protest—that he has done no logging work for 13 months because of a forest management licence granted to B.C. Forest Products 16 months ago.

"That matter is now before the Sloan Commission," he said. "It would be quite improper for me, as premier, to comment upon it at this time." Gillespie told the Times today he would give a 10-minute radio broadcast outlining his protest over CKDA next Friday.

"I am determined to rouse the public as to what is going on," he said.

OUR VERY OWN GARDENING GUIDE

(Insects Edition)

Gardeners and insects seldom see eye to eye. One of the reasons is, most insects have many more eyes than the average gardener, who seldom has more than two. Thus it is difficult for a two-eyed gardener to see eye to eye with a lapidiorialis malofactotus, which may have as many as 1,000,000,200,000 eyes.

Or even with a cut worm, which has none. But what makes it even more difficult for a gardener to see eye to eye with an insect is, the insect and the gardener have different ideas as to the purpose of gardening. The gardener has the quaint notion a garden is gardened with the intention of making it a garden.

Insects, on the other hand, regard a garden as a free-loading area.

Insects are perpetually hungry, and few, if any, are satisfied with a platter of ham and eggs or a filet mignon aux champignons.

Insects prefer to dissect the leaves of roses, apple trees, rhododendrons, lobelias, petunias and aspidistras.

The above should give the gardener enough background to realize why it is difficult to reconcile gardening and insects.

When the insects are happy, the garden is not. A gardener who is also an insect lover has no problems; he simply turns the garden over to the insects, and curls up with a good book.

But gardeners who can take insects or leave them alone will appreciate Our Very Own Method of Insect Control. This is to eliminate all genuine growing plants from the garden, and substitute synthetics.

An aspidistra made of papier mache, for instance, will brighten up the dull corner of the garden. Lobelias and petunias can be made from plastic, tinted with watercolors, and become a delight to the eye.

A completely synthetic garden fashioned along these lines is assurance against the inroads of insects.

Old Mother Nature has yet to fashion an insect which can thrive on papier mache or plastic. So the insects in your synthetic garden will simply starve to death, and all you need do is sweep them under the chaise longue rug which you have put down instead of a lawn.

If, however, you do not like the idea of a synthetic garden, you can always replace the natural-born insects in your garden with synthetic insects.

Just enclose a stamped, self-addressed ten-cent envelope and we will reveal Our Very Own Method of doing same.

Victoria city council may make a further attempt to have Greater Victoria Water District assume responsibility for water concessions to the CPR-owned Crystal Garden.

Exquisite Indian Work
In Moradabad Brassware

By PENNY SAVER

It doesn't seem possible that the exquisite, engraved brassware I found in town could be sold at such reasonable prices. This brassware, called Moradabad, derives its name from the ancient city of the same name, in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh in India. Not only is this Moradabad hand-engraved, but for the most part, hand-made, too. The methods by which it is made are the same methods that have been used for more than a century. In the making, an article passes through the hands of several artisans, each being an expert in the particular part he performs. In the final stages, it is placed in the hands of the engraver who takes from a day, for the smallest article, to three or four months for a large tray, to finish it.

The intricate and original engravings are filled with different colors, forming ornate patterns. Bad vases are $2.25 a pair, and candleholders are priced from $3.25 to $10.95 a pair. A candle snuffer, attractive and not necessarily just an ornament, costs $1 and a combination bottle opener and hammer costs $1.75. An easily-gripped mug is $4.50. Consters are just 50 cents each, and a

A Wedding
Solemnized
On Saturday

While organist, R. Bostillier, played traditional wedding music, bride, Miss Shirley-Sadie Scott, Polson entered St. Mary's Church, Saanichton, to exchange wedding vows with Arthur Henry Frederick Fido in a ceremony performed by Rev. E. H. Lee.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white net fashioned with lace inset panels posed over satin. Her lace jacket with lily point sleeves was trimmed with mother of pearl buttons, and her coronet headdress with mother of pearl trim held a misting fingertip length veil. White gladioli blooms and red rosebuds were in her cascade bridal bouquet. She wore pearl jewelry, the groom's gift.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Scott-Polson, Mount Newton Cross Road, Saanichton. Miss Heather Wishart, maid of honor, wore a yellow lace over taffeta dress with yellow headband and bouquet of mauve gladioli. Sister of the bride, Miss Beverly Scott-Polson, sister of the groom, wore a rose gown with flowered bandeau and nosegay of pink gladioli.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Fido, Mount Newton Cross Road, Saanichton, had Richard D. Scott-Polson, brother of the bride, as best man, while Danny Cuthbert and David Johnston ushered guests to pews marked with white ribbons and spring flowers.

Brenta Lodge, Brentwood Bay, was chosen for the reception party. A four-tier wedding cake flanked by candles and spring flowers centred the bride's table. Robert Kellogg, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to her happiness.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip up-island, the bride wore a white knitted suit with white accessories, a pink shortie coat and mauve gladioli corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Fido will live on Dencross Terrace, Saanichton, until their new home on Mount Newton Cross Road is completed.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here Are Hints to Enhance
The Beauty of Your Back

Some of the things which mar the beauty of feminine backs are a curved spine, round shoulders, fatty deposits across the shoulders and pimples.

Often women who have an otherwise unblemished skin, do have pimples in this area. One reason this is true is because of the inaccessibility of the back. It is impossible to reach all of it unless you use a long-handled bath brush. Every woman should do this and give all of her back a daily scrubbing. Pimples and blackheads on the back may come from clogged oil glands. This may be due to improper cleansing.

Of course blemishes anywhere on the body may come from infection in the body, from poor elimination or the wrong kind of food. If you eat rich, heavy food and neglect fruits and fruit juices and vegetables, diet may be your trouble. If you have diseased teeth or tonsils or sinuses, any one of these could be the culprit.

Today I want to give you another exercise for reducing fat across the back. Bend your trunk forward so that you form a right angle. Let your arms drop toward the floor. Keep your back in this position as you pull to the right with your left shoulder and back and then as far to the left with your right shoulder as possible. Go as far in each direction as you can. Move the shoulders forward as you pull to the left or right. Let the arms swing loosely and concentrate on one shoulder at a time. This exercise should be done slowly.

Here are other factors to watch when thinking of how

Bride Wears Brocaded Gown For Wedding in First Baptist

Charming bride Lois Ottine (Tina) Holm wore a wedding gown made by her mother of heavy white brocade when she exchanged vows in First Baptist Church, Saturday evening, with Ronald Laverne Lampman. Her gown, styled with full skirt which swept from the hipline, was designed with straight panel inset at front. It had a small, rolled collar and long,illy-pointed sleeves. A fingertip veil of embroidered net was held by a crown of net bordered with pearls and mother of pearl sequins. She carried a white Bible, a gift from her mother, mounted by gardenias and stephanotis, and wore a necklace and earrings of rhinestones.

Matron of honor Mrs. R. B. Tiernay, Bracebridge, Ont., sister of the bride, wore a gown of lavender net over taffeta. The full-length skirt was bouffant, and she wore a floral net headress, on tone. Bridesmaid Mrs. R. C. Coles, and bridesmaid Miss Thelma Hannington, wore similar gowns in pale green and blue, respectively. 2 B.C. Youths Die In Hired Plane Crash

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — Two college students home for the summer holidays were killed Sunday when their light plane crashed in a farmer's field about 12 miles east of here.

One of the victims was Derry McCulloch, 20, son of Mrs. Vera McCulloch.

The other was Gordon Folles, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Folles. Both boys were from Vernon and attended the University of British Columbia.

The aircraft, a single-engine Cessna belonging to the Vernon Flying Club, crashed in full view of several people. It was

New Chief Justice Sits First Time; Hears Divorces

Mr. Justice J. G. Rutland of Victoria sat for the first time as a supreme court judge at the court-house here today.

The new justice's first duties was to assist Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane in dealing with the heaviest list of divorce cases of the year.

Petitioned for divorces totaled 19. The list was divided between the two justices and the cases were heard in Supreme Court and County Court.

Earlier, Mr. Justice Rutland, who was sworn in as a Supreme Court justice in Vancouver last week, was welcomed as a member of the bench by Mr. Justice Macfarlane at a ceremony held in Supreme Court.

Over 50 members of the Victoria bar were present at the ceremony.

'Dinty' Moore

Succumbs at 82

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Capt. John Elmer ("Dinty") Moore, one of the most colorful persons in the Vancouver Island city, has died at the age of 82.

He came here on his retirement 16 years ago and is survived by two daughters—Mrs. Gladys Schlegler of California and Mrs. Margaret Bremner of Victoria.

Two sons also survive, Donald at Longview, Wash., and Clarence in Las Vegas, Nev. A brother, Gervan, lives in Cranbrook. There are four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Hire Handicapped NES Posters Urge In City Campaign

A campaign to encourage the employment of physically handicapped persons is being undertaken here by the National Employment Service of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

"Hire the Handicapped" posters already have appeared at conspicuous points throughout the city, and more will appear shortly.

Special placement officers of the NES are trained to relate job requirements to the capabilities of handicapped workers, thus assuring employers that the disability of the worker hired will not be an occupational handicap.

Canadian Post Association and its member companies across Canada are co-operating in the nationwide drive by making otherwise vacant space available to the UIC free of charge. It will continue for the rest of the year.

Born Mighty Wins; Canadian Champ Last

CLEVELAND (AP) — G. V. Whitney's chestnut colt, Born Mighty, defeated favored Fabius of Calumet Farms Saturday to win the $45,340 Ohio Derby at Thistledown on a track made sloppy by thunderstorms.

Canadian Champ, making his first appearance on a U.S. track since winning the Queen's Plate in Toronto the previous week-end, finished a disappointing ninth and last.

VIRGINIA PACHYDERM GETS NO NAIL POLISH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Have you ever tried cutting hangnails off the toes of a nervous elephant? Captive elephants have them all the time.

Anyway, the problem may be nearing a solution.

Arney Baldwin, director of San Francisco's Fleishhacker Zoo, says Virginia, one of his pachyderms charges, is like a different elephant since a local doctor (not a veterinarian) tried a new cuticle remover on her hind feet.

Baldwin, a jocular fellow, said there had been some thought of putting on fingernail polish too, but he didn't say it very seriously.

Solarium Corner

One man the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association Solarium Derby committee was counting on to give them a big hand this year won't be around to help them too much after all.

Ed Duffin, long-time popular figure in fishing, boxing and other sports circles, entered St. Joseph's Hospital recently, and won't be able to give his accustomed big push to the July 22 derby and the Queen Alexandra Solarium for crippled children.

In previous years, Ed, one of the instigators of the derby, has been one of the hardest workers behind the VSIAA and the Anglers-Times Solarium benefit event.

Chairman George Douglas will miss Ed's great work, but he still has a large committee working for him in an attempt to turn a record total of $7,000 over to the Solarium.

Members and non-members of the VSIAA can obtain tickets at $1 each, from any member of the committee, or from boat houses or sporting goods stores.

City Nine Too Strong For Bremerton

Bremerton Pipefitters, one of the top teams in Seattle's softball world, found Victoria Senior A Men's Softball League clubs a bit too powerful over the weekend, and went down to three straight defeats.

Sundays, Arrows and Gorge Hotel came away with 7-4 and 4-3 victories at Central Park after Arrows greeted the Pipefitters Saturday with a 15-2 pasting.

Barry Jackson hit a triple for the Hotelmen in the first game, while Jeff Worrall picked up two singles and a double in the second game Sunday.

Presentations were made by Dr. Gordon F. Grant, "active member" for B.C., and first recipient of the honor in the province.

Representative De Molay awards were presented to Royce Johnson and David Walker.

Building Inspection May Merge With City Engineering

Victoria city building inspection department will be merged with the city engineer's department Thursday if council approves a recommendation passed today by public works committee.

The departmental shift will give city engineer James C. Garnett jurisdiction over the building department while retaining building inspector William Osterink as sub-department head.

Mr. Osterink was reported in agreement with the merger, which was explained as a streamlining procedure to reduce administration problems.

In effect it means main civil powers will now be relegated to three senior city hall executives, city manager C. C. Wyatt, comptroller Dennis Young and city engineer Garnett.

The teachers, selected by the B.C. Department of Education, will take part in the first educational tour of its kind ever staged by an B.C. forest industry company. The tour was arranged by the education department to increase the vocational counsellors' knowledge of industry in the province.

Today and Tuesday will be spent in a study of operations of the Somass division sawmill, the Alberni pulp and paper mill and the Alberni plywood division. On the third day, teachers will tour the Sproat Lake division.

TWO KILLED AS SLIDES BLOCK CLIMB

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Avalanches and snows have forced an Argentine expedition to abandon its climb of 26,810-foot Mount Dhaulagiri, the world's highest unclimbed peak. The team was about 1,500 feet from the top.

A message reaching here said the eight-man Argentine team was all right but that at least two native porters had been killed by avalanches.

The same team tried unsuccessfully to scale Dhaulagiri, the world's fifth tallest peak, two years ago.

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—Finland's Soini Nikkinen reported the world javelin record Sunday with a throw of 274 feet, 1.83 inches.

Sime Given Extra Chance For Olympics

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Sprint star Dave Sime of Duke University and Franklin (Bud) Held of javelin renown Sunday were given a chance to compete in the Olympic tryouts at Los Angeles this week in an unprecedented move by the United States Olympic committee.

Sime was granted permission to try out for a place in the 200 metres. He had already qualified to try for one of the three Olympic team places in the 100-metre dash. He failed to qualify in the 200 metres when he dropped out of the race with a groin injury in the national collegiate championships eight days ago.

The committee felt both Sime and Held, in view of their injuries, had been hampered all spring by ailments—should be afforded a chance in the tryouts.

And for David the time had come to marry. The man who had dismissed marriage as something for the ever-receding future now felt the need of a wife to share his burdens. It was my fate to be the object of his affection at the crucial moment of his decision. But his words now filled me with apprehension.

"David," I exclaimed, "you mustn't talk this way. The idea is impossible. They'd never let you."

My concern failed to change his mood. "I'm well aware of all that," he said almost gaily, "but rest assured, I will manage it somehow."

As we walked, I tried to dissuade him from harbouring this thought. But he turned aside my every sensible objection with light-hearted insouciance. Finally I said: "There's your family, there's your mother."

David often sat in the middle of the table at large parties, so it happened that Ernest was at one end, Emerald at the other, and Mrs. Baldwin sat on the King's right. The Lindberghs were just back from Germany, and the colonel's Cassandra-like forebodings of the growing superiority of German air power could hardly have added to the pleasure of the Prime Minister's evening.

The Prime Minister's biographer, G. M. Young, in his book, Stanley Baldwin, has written that Mr. Baldwin was "intrigued" by our encounter. The biographer goes on: "Mrs. Baldwin's comments, then and after, were less bland. For her, and for women like her throughout the Empire, Mrs. Simpson had stolen the Fairy Prince."

My recollection of that evening is that the Baldwins were pleasant but distant.

PROBING GLANCES
As so often before in the company of those of power and influence, I was conscious of the assaying glance, the unspoken, probing question beneath the polite surface.

As best as I can recall, this was one of the last times that Ernest and I were publicly together in David's company. Not long afterward I told Ernest that I was starting divorce proceedings. He moved to the Guards' Club.

Having made my difficult and painful decision, I refused to look backward. I had little time for regret: my every hour was taken up by expanding social activities in London and the weekends at the Fort.

PLANS CHANGED
When the question of David's summer holiday was in his mind in the year he became king (1936) he planned to rent Maxine Elliott's villa, near Cannes. Unfortunately, France had meanwhile been caught up in a wave of civil turmoil brought on by Blum's Popular Front; in fact, David was informed by his worried ambassador that the Red Flag had been flown in plain sight of his intended abode.

Since it would be impolite for him to appear under such circumstances, he gave up the idea of the Riviera and chartered a yacht, the Nahlin, belonging to Lady Yule.

NEW CRUISE
He decided now to explore new waters — the Dalmatian Coast, Greece and the Aegean Isles, and the Bosphorus. His hope was to recapture the care-free spirit of our last two summers and perhaps build up a little diplomatic good will in a region of growing concern to his government.

David having arranged for the yacht to proceed to Belgrade, on the coast of Yugoslavia, the main party assembled in Paris, with the exception of the Duff Coopers and Herman and Katherine Rogers, who joined us after the cruise was under way. On the evening of August 8 we departed in a private car on the Orient Express.

Joint Effort Obtained Coin For Centennial

Ottawa's announcement of the minting of a silver dollar for B.C.'s centennial in 1958 was largely due to a concerted effort put forward by B.C. organizations, L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, said today.

"Chambers of commerce, boards of trade, mining organizations and every MP and senator from B.C. helped in bringing this project to the government's attention," Mr. Wallace said.

"The committee is grateful for this help. The spirit of co-operation and co-ordination which it demonstrates is a fine omen for a wonderful centennial year."

It is believed to be only the third time in Canada's history that a special coin has been minted. Provincial officials were pessimistic about Ottawa reaction to the request when it was learned that there are a number of other notable anniversaries in 1958, including the 350th anniversary of the founding of Quebec and the 100th anniversary of the minting of the first Canadian coin.

"It was the concerted effort of all these fine people and organizations which brought this about," said Mr. Wallace. "The silver dollar will help spread the fame of our province throughout Canada and the continent."

Board Urges 2-Year Pact For Fishermen
A nine per cent wage increase spread over a two-year contract is recommended by a conciliation board for male members of United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.).

Negotiations were with the union and nine coast fishing operators.

The rate would be calculated on the basis of Vancouver wages and would be retroactive to April 16, 1956.

The union was seeking a 20 cents an hour across-the-board hike in all classification rates, with certain exceptions, and proportionate increases in subsidiary rates.

The report recommended five per cent increase this year and four per cent next year for men, and four per cent in 1956 plus three per cent in 1957 for female workers.

An hourly rate of $1.30 was recommended for fish stick cooks, batter dippers and skinning machine operators.

Other features include a 50-50 contributory basis for a welfare plan offering $1,000 life insurance for single employees and $2,000 for married employees on an annual basis, and weekly indemnity of $25 a week for 13 weeks for accident or illness.

Parties agreed to addition of Remembrance Day as a paid statutory holiday, and further recommendations were made with regard to wages, union recognition, seniority, hours of work and overtime.

Iran Yields in Border Dispute With U.S.S.R.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Gen. Amonollah Jahanbani, head of the Iranian boundaries mission, announced Sunday the century-old Iran-Soviet border dispute has been settled.

A member of the mission said the agreement was "more favorable to the Soviets than to Iran." Iran had conceded some land to the Russians, he added.

L. Westendale, past grand father of the Native Sons of B.C., will announce the winner of Victoria's Good Citizen of the year, and Mayor P. B. Scurrah will make the presentation.

The 5th West Coast Harbor Defence Battery Band, R.C.A. will perform during the ceremonies under the direction of bandmaster W. M. Clark. Standard bearers for the colorful event will be members of the IOOE.

Board Urges 2-Year Pact For Fishermen
A nine per cent wage increase spread over a two-year contract is recommended by a conciliation board for male members of United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.).

Negotiations were with the union and nine coast fishing operators.

The rate would be calculated on the basis of Vancouver wages and would be retroactive to April 16, 1956.

The union was seeking a 20 cents an hour across-the-board hike in all classification rates, with certain exceptions, and proportionate increases in subsidiary rates.

The report recommended five per cent increase this year and four per cent next year for men, and four per cent in 1956 plus three per cent in 1957 for female workers.

An hourly rate of $1.30 was recommended for fish stick cooks, batter dippers and skinning machine operators.

Other features include a 50-50 contributory basis for a welfare plan offering $1,000 life insurance for single employees and $2,000 for married employees on an annual basis, and weekly indemnity of $25 a week for 13 weeks for accident or illness.

Parties agreed to addition of Remembrance Day as a paid statutory holiday, and further recommendations were made with regard to wages, union recognition, seniority, hours of work and overtime.

Iran Yields in Border Dispute With U.S.S.R.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Gen. Amonollah Jahanbani, head of the Iranian boundaries mission, announced Sunday the century-old Iran-Soviet border dispute has been settled.

A member of the mission said the agreement was "more favorable to the Soviets than to Iran." Iran had conceded some land to the Russians, he added.

ANONYMITY CARRIED TOO FAR

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)

It's not that the Episcopal charities fund objects to anonymous contributions, but anonymity can be carried too far.

The Rhode Island Churchman, the Episcopal organ, suggests in a front-page box that it would appreciate it if the anonymous donor of a $20 cheque would shed his anonymity long enough to sign the cheque.

Fine Follows 'Doing Favor'
Gordon Souliere, Camp Gordon Head, was fined $25 for driving without a licence, but dismissed from a charge of taking a car without the owner's consent when he appeared in Saanich police court last week.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said there was doubt that Souliere had stolen a truck willfully. The soldier said he remembered nothing of driving the truck from the time he was given the keys by a man he thought to be the owner, to when he awakened in the vehicle as police stopped him. He had been drinking, he said.

He said he thought he was doing the man a favor by taking the light truck back to Gordon Head, where he was headed when stopped.

Two Seattle yachts shared top honors in the annual Swiftsure ocean racing classic over the weekend, and each set new corrected time records.

After battling it out within hailing distance for slightly over 30 hours, the two winners were:

Swift sure trophy, Adios, skipper Carl Jensen, time 30 hrs. 34 mins. 12 sec.; corrected time, 25.11.53.

City of Victoria trophy for first boat to finish, Maruffa, skipper John Graham, time 30.17.46; corrected time, 25.23.18.

Adios and Maruffa left the rest of the 23 entries far astern as they flew home with all sails drawing in a favoring westerly.

In third place was Bellingham's Gossip, home in 33.14.18; corrected time, 26.35.17.

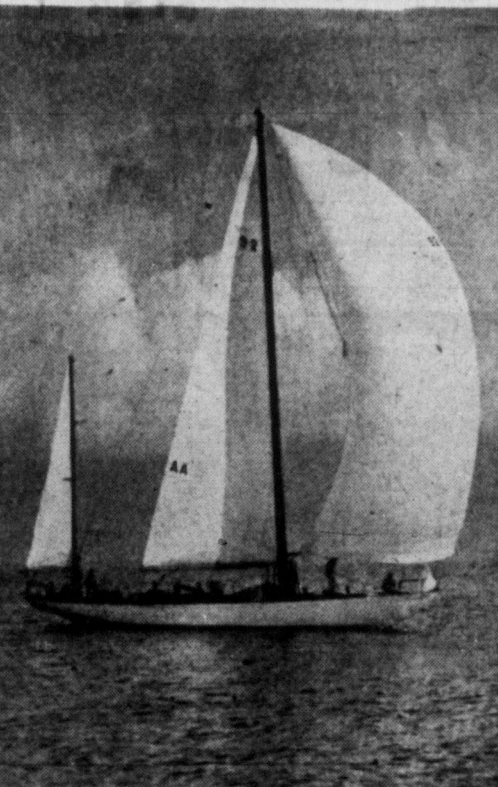

1,500 SEE FINISH
On the stretch run, watched by about 1,500 spectators along the waterfront, Skipper Graham hung on every inch of canvas in an effort to stretch his lead over Adios to more than 28 minutes—the difference between the time allowance of the two boats.

But Carl Jensen in Adios hung on grimly. He was forced to drop his spinnaker briefly as he cut through the Race Rocks inside passage; but his crew had it up again in time to cut Maruffa's margin to about 14 minutes, giving Adios the Swiftsure Trophy.

Yachtsmen agree both Seattle Yacht Club entries deserve the highest praise for what was probably the finest racing in the history of the classic.

Press, radio and TV representatives and Royal Victoria Yacht Club officials aboard Island Tug and Barge Co.'s deep-sea tugboat Sudbury agreed the "men were separated from the boys" at the Swiftsure lightship, turning point in the race.

Tallest Totem Souvenir Report to Shareholders

About half the 10,000 people who donated their 50-cent shares for the world's tallest totem project do not live in Victoria but in places all over the world. Shares were sent to them by relatives in most cases.

Next Friday the Times will publish a special souvenir edition on the tallest totem as part of the regular editions. It will, in effect, be a report to shareholders on the completion of the project, containing pictures of the finished totem and the full story of how it was carried out, in text and photos.

Since many subscribers will wish to send souvenirs to the out-of-town shareholders extra copies will be printed and put in special wrappers for mailing. Advance orders for these may be placed immediately with the Times circulation department, phone 2-3131.

One of the interesting articles in the section is the legend of the totem, told for the first time by Mungo Martin, the chief carver.

The edition will contain the names of all the shareholders in the project, with recognition to the individuals and firms who have donated their time and services toward its completion.

Dedication of the totem is scheduled for 3 p.m. July 2, at the Beacon Hill Park site where it will be erected.

Swimming Chef Covers 5 Miles

By TONY DICKASON

Today's Juan de Fuca swim lasted six hours, almost to the second.

Victoria chef Ben Laughren touched the accompanying vessel Meota at 9.07 a.m., about five miles from where he entered the Strait of Juan de Fuca at Horseshoe Bay.

Chop was heavy when he hit the water, and increased to white-capped waves shortly after.

There was no let-up in 10 to 15 mph winds until the swimmer left the water, then, almost magically, wind died and the sea calmed.

Big Ben, a 270-pounder, was tired and cold near his strait bid's end.

His style differed from his previous four attempts on the 18.3 miles of water between here and Port Angeles. He hit out hard with a fast crawl, and kept it up the entire time except when taking hourly honey and glucose feedings.

Previously, Ben had used a relaxed side stroke.

When he plunged in at 3.07 a.m. today, water was slack. The plan was to catch the tide change around 7 a.m. This happened, but the brisk southwest wind cut down the surface tide, bringing no appreciable advantage to the swimmer.

Trainer Ove Witt, in a dinghy alongside, suggested to Ben that he quit. Ben for a time was adamant and plowed ahead again, knocking it off about 15 minutes later.

Cruel cut was that the bothersome wind freshened again before it finally died.

To help prevent the sea pounding his head, Ben wore his white bathing cap pulled down to where it almost covered his eyes. He was swimming nearly blind.

A touch not seen for some time in the strait was that of two swimmers pulling along together for a short distance.

Sixteen-year-old Anita Long, a Victoria strait aspirant being managed by Jerry Lavigne, was aboard Geoffrey Wenman's Phyllis F., and at 8.18 plunged off the prow, swimming alongside Ben until the end. She had goggles atop her bathing cap but didn't use them.

Ben made a terrific bid, but the vagaries of Juan de Fuca again proved too much. He'll try again.

Leonard's 67 Marks
Canada Cup Series

WENTWORTH, Eng. (BUP) — Canada, led by Stan Leonard's four-under-par 67, jumped into the halfway lead of the fourth annual Canada Cup international golf competition with an aggregate 36-hole total of 283, three strokes ahead of the U.S.

Leonard, the veteran pro from Lachute, Que., also took over the individual lead from Ben Hogan of the United States, adding his 67 to a first round 69 for a 36-hole total of 136, a stroke better than bantam Ben.

Leonard's partner, Al Balding of Toronto, carded a one over 72 after shooting a 75 Sunday to give Canada the lead.

The U.S. team of Hogan and Sam Snead, pre-tournament favorites, had an aggregate of 286, two strokes better than the Wales twosome of Dai Lees and Dennis Smalldon.

Leonard, the 40-year-old leading money winner in Canada, injured his hand just before the 72-hole tournament started. He displayed some remarkable putting as he toured the front nine in 33 and returned in 34. He canned a 15-footer on the sixth hole and dropped 20-foot putts on the 15th and 16th. His 20-foot putt for an eagle on the 18th stopped on the rim of the cup.

Queen Invited To Open Seaway
LONDON (CP) — If the Queen accepts an invitation to go to Canada for the official opening of the St. Lawrence seaway, the chances are she'll probably make a coast-to-coast tour.

Prime Minister St. Laurent indicated this today in an informal chat with Canadian reporters. Later, he drove to Buckingham Palace, where he had an audience with the Queen and extended an invitation to her to visit Canada for the seaway opening, scheduled for 1959.

Before leaving for the palace, he said in reply to a reporter's question that if the Queen accepted the invitation, there would probably be pressure from many Canadian communities for the Queen to extend her stay long enough to visit this part of the country as well.

He said it seemed unlikely that the Queen would go to Canada just for the opening.

and then go straight back to Britain.

If Her Majesty's visit materializes, it will be her second visit to Canada. In 1951, as Princess Elizabeth, she toured the country with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh.

The indications are that Canada intends to make the seaway opening a historic occasion. It is probable that the president of the United States will also be invited.

QUEEN WILL ENTERTAIN VCS TUESDAY
Mickey O'Rourke Gets There Sans Passport

LONDON (CP) — Michael O'Rourke, 81-year-old Canadian Victoria Cross winner from Vancouver, arrived by air today just in time to join the first of the VC centenary celebrations.

O'Rourke, who made a last-minute decision to come to London, landed here just before noon. He came without a passport but a Trans-Canada Air Lines spokesman said O'Rourke got past the immigration officials without any trouble.

"It's fairly unusual to come without a passport but everything went smoothly," the informant said.

O'Rourke originally ducked the invitation to come to London, thinking it was a joke. When he changed his mind, it was feared he had left it too late but an unidentified well-wisher arranged his passage at the last moment.

He came to London with his sister, Mrs. Sadie King. It was believed they both went to Westminster Abbey for this afternoon's ceremony, which opened a week-long series of services for VC winners from most Commonwealth countries.

The address at today's Abbey service was to be given by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher.

Other ceremonies are scheduled throughout the week. On Tuesday Queen Elizabeth will review a parade of VCs in London's Hyde Park. The same afternoon, the anniversary of the day in 1857 when Queen Victoria made the first presentation of the Cross, Queen Elizabeth and other members of the Royal Family will attend a garden party for the medal-holders and their relatives.

For days now ships and planes have been bringing the VCs to London. In many cases the award was made posthumously, and sons and widows of the dead will represent them at the ceremonies.

Heading the Canadian contingent of 35 is Lt.-Gen. Sir Richard Turner of Quebec City, 85 next month and one of the most decorated soldiers Canada has produced. He won his VC fighting in the Boer War and later was one of Canada's foremost commanders in Europe during the First World War.

The Victoria Cross has been won by 1,347 men in British and Commonwealth forces, of whom 285 are still living. All have been invited to the centenary celebrations and besides the Canadians those able to come will include 37 from Australia, nine from New Zealand and 11 from India.

PRAYER FOR TODAY
FATHER IN HEAVEN, as the chief ministers of the Commonwealth meet together to consider joint policy in a world divided, we pray that their discussions may have a good and fruitful conclusion, that they may be instrumental in making our fitful peace more firm; through Jesus Christ. Amen.

Neck, Head Wounds In Murder Attempt

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—Terrorists attempted to assassinate Senior Justice Bernard Shaw here today. They fired two shots which injured Shaw in the neck and head.

Shaw was shot as he sat in his car in Nicosia's Victoria street.

The shooting occurred during the rush hour when Nicosia workers go home for a three-hour noon break.

Justice Shaw is a senior judge of the special court which handles the most serious EOKA terrorist crimes. He has sentenced several terrorists to death and others to life imprisonment.

Shaw passed the death sentence on Michael Karoalis and Andreas Demetriou, the two terrorists whose execution in May led to strong protests by the Greek government and disorders in Cyprus.

Later they opened fire on people trying to swarm over the walls of the old city in an attempt to break the cordon. A woman was shot in the arm. Shaw came to Cyprus last November to take charge of the special court.

He is constantly guarded by armed policemen. A bodyguard goes with him everywhere.

Before dawn today pro-Greek rebels bombed a police station in suburban Deftera, wounding a British soldier in the leg.

for lunch when two armed men approached his car. Leaning forward, they quickly fired two shots. The judge fell forward, shot in the head and neck.

His escort jumped from the car and fired at the two gunmen, who dashed to a small car and sped away.

The audacious attack presumably by EOKA gunmen, occurred just after 1 p.m. in the Armenian quarter inside the walled part of Nicosia.

Immediately after the shooting British troops cordoned off the walled city.

appeared to have a fighting chance, including the three Canadian boats, Vancouver's Mary Bower and Gometra, and the RCN's Oriole from Esquimalt.

GOT EARLY LEAD

Adios had established an early lead, with Maruffa and Dorade, also a Seattle Yacht Club entry, snapping at her heels.

The other yachts were bunched over a 10-mile area, bowling along under a 11 to 12-knot wind. Then Oriole ran into trouble. Her mainsail split, vertically, near the mast, and she lost valuable time despite emergency repairs.

Oriole never recovered; ran into trouble again when becalmed for hours near the lightship, and failed to finish within the time limit.

Yankee Doodle of Portland was also an early casualty when her main blew out. Yankee Clipper, sailed by the "tough luck" Seattle Sea Scouts, broke a mainstay and put in to Port Angeles.

The other yachts struggled on, but up to the turn, the race was all between Adios, Maruffa and Dorade. They often passed within a cable length of each other as they tacked the position.

Adios made the turn first, shortly after 1 a.m., followed by Maruffa and Dorade.

Then came the decisive race: Adios and Maruffa elected a starboard tack, toward the S.S. shore; Dorade heeled on the port tack, in the opposite direction.

TWO DID, TWO DIDN'T

Adios and Maruffa caught the wind, Dorade didn't, and there is the story of the race. On the way home, Adios led until freshening winds enabled Maruffa, a faster boat before the wind, to overtake her.

It was a two-boat race all the way down the strait, settled only when Adios skimmed home within the handicap time differential.

Interest in the race, on the part of both yachtsmen and landmen, was the greatest ever. For the first time, continuous progress reports were made possible, through the loan of Sudbury and her communications equipment. CKDA's news director, Andy Stephen, carried out a 32-hour marathon broadcast, with reports every hour. Capt. Harley Blagborne, renowned for his deep-sea salvage job of the Greek freighter Makedonia, brought Sudbury close alongside the competing yachts for the photographs appearing in this issue of The Times.

Competitors had high praise for the host, RVYC. Not a single protest was recorded.

Bullet-Pierced Body Found By Children

EDMONTON (CP) — The bullet-pierced body of Lewis Lloyd, 37, was discovered Sunday afternoon in a rain-drenched ditch near a drive-in theatre on the outskirts of the city.

RCMP said Lloyd moved to Edmonton from Vancouver six weeks ago.

Two children, Gertrude, 11, and Edelgard Herzog, 13, discovered Lloyd's body about 3 p.m. Sunday, 300 yards from their home a half-mile south of the city limits.

Two wounds indicated a bullet had entered his right side and passed through the body, emerging below the heart.

The body lay face up in a ditch on the west side of the muddy road, 200 yards from Lloyd's delivery truck, which had sunk into a five-foot ditch on the other side of the road.

Police sought clues as to how Lloyd left the vehicle after it entered the ditch. Rain had washed away nearly all footprints and tracks.

HUNT WEAPON

RCMP used rakes to scrape the surrounding area and ditches to find a weapon. No blood or traces of bullet marks were found on the truck.

Edmund Gendron, a room-mate and an associate in a landscaping business, is the last known person to have seen Lloyd alive.

PRINCESS ANNE LOST BRIEFLY AT POLO GAME

LONDON (UP) — Five-year-old Princess Anne touched off a flurry of excitement at a polo match Sunday when she broke away from the side of her mother, Queen Elizabeth, and dashed off into the crowd.

Her aunt, Princess Margaret, ran behind her shouting: "Anne, Anne, wait for me!" But the youngster became temporarily lost in the crowd until, a woman shouted, "here she is."

The little princess was led back to the royal box while her polo-playing father, the Duke of Edinburgh, rode ahead on horseback to clear a path for her.

Boy 15, Charged In B.C. Slaying

IRVINE'S LANDING, B.C. (CP) — A 15-year-old boy was charged with murder today but RCMP refused to disclose his name or when and where he will come up in court.

They said the boy was arrested in the rifle slaying of Mrs. Mary Flynn, 65, found Friday with two bullets in her body.

"We can't tell you his name because he's a juvenile," police said. "We can't release his name unless the magistrate gives us permission."

The boy was arrested Saturday at nearby Pender Harbor about a day after two neighbors found the widow's body, slumped over in a chair in the log cabin where she lived alone.

The area is about 60 miles northwest of Vancouver, on Sechart Peninsula.

The two women had come to ask Mrs. Flynn to do a baby-sitting job. They found her with part of her jaw shot away and a second bullet hole in the chest.

Police said they could find no motive for the slaying and had not been able to locate the death weapon—believed to be a heavy calibre rifle.

The boy, hunted down by RCMP with a tracking dog and search plane, was taken to Sechart where the charge was read to him.

RCMP also refused to say when or where the boy would

THROAT CUT

'Safety' Belt Kills Driver

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A safety belt was the instrument of death for a New York man who died Sunday from car crash injuries.

Kurt Eichler, 62, was riding last Thursday in a 1956 Mercedes-Benz driven by his son, Frank, 26.

The elder Eichler's seat belt was either loose or worked loose as the car crashed into an oncoming auto, police said. The elder Eichler slipped down and the safety belt caught him on the throat, severing his trachea.

Dr. Leonard Berry listed the cause of death as asphyxiation.

John W. Bell, 69, 3420 Seymour, was released from St. Joseph's hospital Sunday after treatment for head cuts suffered when he was in collision with a car while attempting to cross Douglas at Cloverdale.

Driver of the car was Edgar R. Nicklin, 1058 Pembroke.

Miss Minnie Gets 20 Years For Embezzling $3 Million

NORFOLK, Va. (UP) — Miss Minnie Mangum, who learned how to do good things for people while teaching a Sunday school class, was sentenced to 20 years in prison today for embezzling almost $3,000,000 so she could help friends and relatives.

Miss Mangum was head bookkeeper for a building and loan association when an argument she had with an employee aroused the suspicions of an examiner.

Judge H. Lawrence Bullock read the sentence. It included 10 years each on two indictments, to run consecutively, and two years each on 11 other indictments, to run concurrently.

It was expected she will be eligible for parole after serving five years.

She could have received a sentence totalling 220 years.

Miss Minnie stood grim-faced in the crowded courtroom as the sentence was read. She had slipped into court early this morning to elude a swarm of photographers.

After the sentence was read she was led away by three plainclothes officers to go to Richmond to begin serving the state prison immediately. Until today—she had been free on bond.

A probation officer read a report prior to the sentencing.

The plump, 52-year-old spinster pleaded guilty to 22 charges of embezzling. She was sentenced in the same courtroom where she admitted a fantastic juggling of the books of Commonwealth Building and Loan Association over nearly a score of years to cover up for much of the shortages which amounted to more than $2,844,000.

Miss Mangum previously was sentenced to 10 years for lying to state officials about the financial condition of the building and loan association where she worked.

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Tens of thousands of Tunisians turned out Sunday for the first parade of their newly formed national army. Premier Habib Bourguiba and cabinet members watched the parade. With them was French Ambassador Roger Seydoux and French army officers who helped train the new army.

Points of View

I'M GOING to call him Mr. Singh. He's an old East Indian who comes to see us sometimes about jobs connected with a farm. He's not what you would call an educated man, in an academic sense. But he's a fine old man with a craggy, kindly face that I would like to paint or carve if I were a creative type of individual.

Last summer, when my husband was in hospital in the middle of the haying season, Mr. Singh came out to see whether the boys and I were making out alright, and to offer help if we needed it.

I'll never forget his kindness on that occasion. Neither will I forget a bitterly cold morning last November.

Mr. Singh dropped in on business, and while he and my husband talked in the warmth of the kitchen, another East Indian's name came into the conversation.

He was at the Sikh Temple, Mr. Singh said. It was a special celebration, he explained, and his friend would be at the temple all day.

"Not your God," he said easily. "But that doesn't make any difference. God and goodness. It's all the same. The name doesn't matter."

Since then, I've often thought of Mr. Singh's attitude towards religion. I thought of it especially when I read a news item about a visiting preacher in Vancouver who told his listeners that the church they belonged to was the only true one because it practised total immersion. And he quoted biblical chapter and verse to prove his point.

To me, the viewpoint of Mr. Singh is the one to emulate, and the one most suited to these times.

For, as the world grows smaller through improved transportation, we are going to see more of the other peoples in the world. (Think how, already, we mix far more than we did 100 years ago.)

We are going to have to share the world with these people. And share it peacefully since war has become too dangerous in this atomic age.

I suggest that, to make the sharing easier, we must minimize religious differences, and seek instead to find some common ground among the world's major faiths.

I suggest that the time is therefore past when the people of any one religion can go around claiming that they have the monopoly on goodness and on truth.

Some of the bitterest wars in history have been fought over religion. We could have other such wars if too many people are too militant and bigoted over the religion of their choice.

To me there is hope in the viewpoint of Mr. Singh and those who think as he does. There is danger in the other viewpoint.

And it seems to me that this is a matter we should ponder very seriously indeed. Especially if we are bringing up children who, as adults, will live in a world quite different from the one we knew in our youth.

YOUR HEALTH

Diet for Arthritis

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Every week many persons ask me for a diet for arthritis. As I have said many times in this column, experts on arthritis rarely prescribe a diet unless the patient is too fat or too thin. There are a number of quack or fad diets for arthritis, but I am not interested in them. I have never heard of a scientifically-prescribed diet which would affect the condition of the joints, except in the case of gout.

Naturally, anyone who is much overweight is putting terrible strain on the joints of his legs and, particularly, the knees, the ankles and the feet. I often think of the truck-driver who one day brought me his very stout wife with painful flat feet, painful bulging ankles, and painful knees. He said disgustedly, "The trouble with the missus is that she, who started out in life with a one-ton-truck chassis, has piled ten tons onto it. It just won't carry it." How correct he was! A professor of medicine or English could not have summed up the case more clearly!

ADVERTISING "CLINICS" OR HOSPITALS

People keep asking me if they should go to some advertising "clinic" or hospital where men claim to cure some special type of disease. Usually, I am able to say that I have seen several persons who were mistreated or swindled at the place asked about. Certainly, a man takes his life in his hands when he goes to a place in which the management is not in the hands of a fine lay board and a number of fine, able and ethical physicians.

To show what goes on in some of these places: a patient came to me saying he had been to a "clinic" for the treatment of piles. The men there told him that he had a very bad case of piles that any day would turn into cancer. For $500 in advance they guaranteed a cure. Much frightened, the patient came to see me. Unable to see any piles, I sent the man to one of America's leading rectal experts who, also, could not see anything wrong, or anything to operate on!

If the man had fallen for the scheme, the "clinic" people doubtless after a so-called operation—a little cut in his skin—would have got from him an affidavit saying that they had cured him of cancer.

All laymen should remember that fine big clinics and fine hospitals do not have to advertise for patients. They have all the patients they can take care of. Usually the place that advertises has to do so because there are too few satisfied patients who will refer their friends or come back themselves. Also, no good physician will let his patients go there.

BURNING SKIN IN OLDER PERSONS

I think, usually, older persons who suddenly develop a burning patch of skin that feels as if it were in scalding water have had a little stroke. I have seen many of these persons who went on with the burning for years in spite of much treatment with sedatives and other drugs.

People ask if this disease is likely to spread or to injure them greatly, and my reply is that I doubt it. Why? Because I have known many persons who had had such burnings for years without coming to any bad end. Unfortunately, I know of no good treatment.

VALUE OF BREAST FEEDING

I always marvel when I see a physician refuse to let a mother nurse her infant for even a few days, because I have long ready that the colostrum, or first watery milk secreted by the breast, contains valuable antibodies designed to protect the infant from illness and death. I have read that a calf that is not allowed to get this colostrum is likely soon to die of dysentery.

Now comes Dr. Berry Campbell and W. E. Petersen, of the University of Minnesota, who report experiments on cows that showed that germs in a nursing calf's mouth go into the mother's udder and there produce within a few hours antibodies that come back out in the milk to protect the calf against infection with the particular germ. If this wonderful process takes place also in a mother's breast, we old-fashioned doctors will have an additional argument for the return to the nourishment of infants—breast feeding.

CANCER CURED MORE OFTEN

Today, as we hear so much about the greater incidence in man, it is good to hear, also, that cancer is being cured much more often.

As Surgeon-General Scheele, of the U.S. Public Health Service, just told the General Practitioners in Washington, D.C., with the help of earlier diagnosis and better treatment, in the last 10 years the average rate of cure of cancer has gone up from about 15 per cent to about 50 per cent. And in many cases in which the patient comes too late for a cure, his life can be prolonged and he can be made more comfortable.

Small Birds Add Sparkle To Color-Splashed Show

The extra grey hairs were justified—it was a great show.

In the closing hours Saturday evening of the flower show held by the Victoria Horticultural Society I made an attempt to assess the feeling of the show.

It seemed to me that those responsible for the organizing and running of the event had relaxed their tension and were thoroughly enjoying the displays and the crowds.

And crowds there certainly were, from the moment of opening on Friday until after the normal 9 o'clock closing on Saturday.

As usual, the unexpected angles developed in the results, so that in some cases the carefully tended blooms met stiff competition and lost out, while a chance bloom discovered in the garden at the last moment won a blue ribbon.

As usual, also, there were many notebooks and pencils in use, many questions asked and answered, and much satisfaction in viewing so much beauty of color and form.

Delightful interludes were created quite spontaneously by a small bird who came frequently to sit on the high window ledge and sing. Sometimes the soft accompaniment of the electric organ, or just as happily alone, the little bird's performances were repeated throughout the two days.

A great congregation of gardeners, old and new, the crowds were a fitting tribute to those who added a "few more grey hairs" in the show's preparation.

MASTERS' WORK

The Sistine chapel at Vatican City was decorated by Michelangelo and other great artists at different periods.

Rose Bowl Winner

Winner by popular vote, Mrs. Kay Carpenter was awarded the Birks Ltd. rose bowl for her artistic arrangement at the summer show of the Victoria Horticultural Society which closed at the Crystal Garden Saturday. More than 1,000 persons saw the two-day show.

$100,000 Program Planned To Sell B.C. Farm Produce

Bennett Coming to Aid Of Frost-Hit Farmers

A four-month advertising and public relations campaign to help B.C. farmers sell their products on their home market was launched today by Premier Bennett.

The campaign will cost the government $100,000 derived from a supplementary agricultural estimate and will employ the slogan "Prosperous Agriculture means a Prosperous British Columbia."

Mr. Bennett said newspapers, radio, outdoor advertising and farm papers will be used to further the campaign which will continue until Oct. 15.

Advertising will be handled by a Vancouver firm of advertising consultants.

"Regardless of their political views, we know we can count on the press to back us in this campaign," Mr. Bennett said.

"We shall also appeal to housewives to ask if vegetables were grown in B.C. before buying them. It will be one of the most public-spirited, non-political campaigns this government has ever launched."

SUFFERED BADLY

Mr. Bennett added that farmers enjoy "greater prosperity" in B.C. than anywhere else. But they had suffered one of the worst winters in history and needed government help in marketing their produce.

"We shall also help them to get more feed if present surveys show that they need it."

He said the campaign will concentrate on publicizing the availability of such B.C. produced farm products as fluid milk, frying and roasting chickens, turkeys, vegetables, potatoes, tree fruits and grass-fed beef.

The man on the land in this province represents an annual production turnover of $142,000,000, the premier said, "but his take home pay is only $50,000,000. This makes agriculture third among the province's basic industries."

He emphasized that B.C. has a farm population of 115,000 on nearly 26,000 farms and the bulk of this population lives within easy access of the main metropolitan markets.

U.S. COMPETITION

"These farmers have a ready market for their goods but they have to compete with importations from the south—often landed here at ruinous prices," said the premier.

He said B.C. farmers have invested more than $400,000,000 in their land, buildings, implements, machinery and livestock, and produce a wider variety of crops than any other Canadian province.

Cabinet Sanction Hoped Friday For Civic Schemes

Mayor Percy Scurrell hopes to meet with the B.C. cabinet Friday to discuss four matters of civic business which require government sanction.

These are a grant to the Victoria Symphony Society of $2,500, the extent of Victoria benefits under the Capital District Improvement Commission scheme, approval of six-day shopping in Victoria and the matter of Goldstream and Thetis Lake Parks which were offered to the province earlier for development.

The mayor said he was advised the cabinet will meet Tuesday and the four Victoria matters are "at the top of the list."

Special horticultural crops, including flowers, bulbs and holly had an annual turnover value of $4,000,000. Dairying was the chief agricultural crop in B.C. with a 1955 production worth $31,000,000.

"But in spite of this, B.C. has the lowest per capita milk consumption of any province in Canada," Mr. Bennett said.

"This is a great pity. Milk is a healthful beverage and we should drink lots more of it. We plan to assist the dairy farmer by publicizing fluid milk and raising the milk consumption of every man, woman and child in the province."

He said poultry came second to dairying in B.C. and its eggs and poultry meats are renowned throughout Canada for their high quality. Grass-fed beef from the Cariboo and the North Okanagan and Kootenays was so popular that $14,000,000 worth finds its way into B.C. homes.

Of all its products, B.C.'s main export was tree fruits with McIntosh and Delicious finding their way to most states of the union, to Britain and right across Canada.

Mr. Bennett said British Columbians are purchasing "more and more" apples from the irrigated lands of the Okanagan and Kootenays. Tree fruit growers realize between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 annually from the sale of orchard products.

ELECTION SMILE

Mr. Bennett smiled and shook his head when asked if the campaign had any relation to the possibility of an election this fall.

"This is not a political matter," he said, "it is vital to the welfare of this province."

OUR VERY OWN GARDENING GUIDE (Insects Edition)

Gardeners and insects seldom see eye to eye. One of the reasons is, most insects have many more eyes than the average gardener, who seldom has more than two. Thus it is difficult for a two-eyed gardener to see eye to eye with a lapidolus malofactotus, which may have as many as 1,000,000,200,009 eyes.

Or even with a cut worm, which has none.

But what makes it even more difficult for a gardener to see eye to eye with an insect is, the insect and the gardener have different ideas as to the purpose of gardening.

The gardener has the quaint notion a garden is gardened with the intention of making it a garden.

Insects, on the other hand, regard a garden as a free-loading area.

Insects are perpetually hungry, and few, if any, are satisfied with a platter of ham and eggs or a filet mignon aux champignons.

Insects prefer to dissect the leaves of roses, apple trees, rhododendrons, lobelias, petunias and aspidistras.

The above should give the gardener enough background to realize why it is difficult to reconcile gardening and insects.

When the insects are happy, the garden is not. A gardener who is also an insect lover has no problem; he simply turns the garden over to the insects, and curls up with a good book.

But gardeners who can take insects or leave them alone will appreciate Our Very Own Method of Insect Control.

This is to eliminate all genuine growing plants from the garden, and substitute synthetics.

An aspidistra made of papier mache, for instance, will brighten up the duller corner of the garden.

Lobelias and petunias can be made from plastic, tinted with watercolors, and become a delight to the eye.

A completely synthetic garden fashioned along these lines is assurance against the inroads of insects.

Old Mother Nature has yet to fashion an insect which can thrive on papier mache or plastic. So the insects in your synthetic garden will simply starve to death, and all you need do is sweep them under the chaise longue rug which you have put down instead of a lawn.

If, however, you do not like the idea of a synthetic garden, you can always replace the natural-born insects in your garden with synthetic insects.

Just enclose a stamped, self-addressed tent-caterpillar and we will reveal Our Very Own Method of doing same.

Wurtele Offers Land Premier Calls To Keep Navy Museum Yarder Fracas Publicity Bid

Esquimalt reeve and former naval officer, Cmdr. A. C. Wurtele, today expressed indignation at the suggestion the Naval Maritime Museum should be moved to Victoria.

"There is only one logical place and that's Esquimalt," he stated. "It existed long before Victoria."

He said he would recommend to his council that the navy be offered a donation of property adjoining Memorial park on Esquimalt road. He said he had discussed the matter with Rear Admiral Hugh Pullen.

Following a city council visit to the museum last week, it was learned at city hall a move is afoot to relocate the museum closer to the district centre. It had been suggested the museum be taken over by the city and the province as a tourist attraction.

At present the one-year-old museum is located in an old two-story brick building near HMC Dockyard. It is crowded and lacks sufficient parking space. Naval officials feel it could be doubled in size if new premises were available, and stated the navy would turn the museum lock, stock and barrel to other sponsors.

AT CRAIGDARROCH

Although the matter has not yet been discussed in open meeting of council suggestions have been made to locate the museum at Craigdarroch Castle, present home of the Greater Victoria School Board. It was suggested it should be combined with a museum of army souvenirs as well.

A similar naval museum in Halifax was taken over jointly by the city and the province and now operates under grants from both bodies.

Premier Calls Yarder Fracas Publicity Bid

Premier Bennett today referred to the dumping of a 20-ton loggers' yarder outside the Parliament Buildings last Friday as "just a publicity stunt" and added, "boys must have their fun, you know."

He denied a statement by Cowichan logger Jim Gillespie, owner of the yarder, that he moved it "at the personal request of the premier."

"I never saw Mr. Gillespie," the premier smiled, "I have no time to go around moving yarders—there are lots of other people here to look after those problems."

The premier declined comment on Gillespie's protest—that he has done no logging work for 13 months because of a forest management licence granted to B.C. Forest Products 16 months ago.

"That matter is now before the Sloan Commission," he said. "It would be quite improper for me, as premier, to comment upon it at this time."

Gillespie told the Times today he would give a 10-minute radio broadcast outlining his protest over CKDA next Thursday.

"I am determined to rouse the public as to what is going on," he said.

Wrong Type 'Lung' Blamed In Drowning

City Youth Victim At Prospect Lake

The breathing apparatus worn by 20-year-old Maurice Goodman, 20 Gorge East, when he drowned in Prospect Lake Saturday afternoon was a type used for survival in smoke-filled rooms.

An investigation by RCN School of Diving experts showed that for underwater breathing purposes, the lung should have had a further adjustment which Goodman's son neglected.

Called a closed-circuit lung, the apparatus should have had an opening in one of its canisters sealed up. In smoke, the chemical-filled canister filtered air and mixed it with oxygen carried in another canister.

When in contact with moisture the chemical produces a noxious gas, which it is thought may have made the diver sick underwater, which resulted in his death by drowning.

His death was the fourth due to drowning in Greater Victoria this year.

Coroner Dr. E. C. Hart said there will be no inquest since evidence shows the drowning was accidental. Only the victim had made adjustments to the breathing gear.

The youth was using the lung, of a type formerly used by navy skin divers, for the first time and was being timed by his father, Thomas T. Goodman, who stood on the shore with 17-year-old Ivor Goodman, also an amateur diver.

DOWN EIGHT FEET

They were at the public bathing beach on East Lake Road where the shore slopes gradually into the water. The drowning victim went down about eight feet, 20-30 feet from shore and after he did not resurface after 15 minutes, his brother went in after him.

Ivor pulled Maurice ashore and Saanich fire department resuscitator crew was called at 4:44 p.m. They worked on him until told by police doctor Lloyd McNeiven at 5:20 further effort would be useless.

Mr. Goodman said his son had worked on the diving lung for a considerable time before testing it. An earlier dive Saturday afternoon had lasted five minutes, and Maurice remained within sight of shore all the time.

Ivor had a similar diving unit which he had not used. There are reported to be many of the same type in use here or easily obtainable from surplus navy stores.

It is believed Maurice purchased the lung privately. He had used one previously through borrowing it from a friend.

A former Victoria High School student, Maurice was an electrical apprentice at HMC Dockyard.

Although they have been declared obsolete by the navy, the lungs were "supposed to be a good device during the time they were used," Saanich police Const. Bob Peterson said.

Exquisite Indian Work
In Moradabad Brassware

By PENNY SAVER

It doesn't seem possible that the exquisite, engraved brassware I found in town could be sold at such reasonable prices. This brassware, called Moradabad, derives its name from the ancient city of the same name. In the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh in India. Not only is this Moradabad hand-engraved, but for the most part, hand-made, too. The methods by which it is made are the same methods that have been used for more than a century. In the making, an article passes through the hands of several artisans, each being an expert in the particular part he performs. In the final stages, it is placed in the hands of the engraver who takes from a day, for the smallest article, to three or four months for a large tray, to finish it.

The intricate and original engravings are filled with different colors, forming ornate patterns. Bud vases are $2.25 a pair, and candleholders are priced from $3.25 to $10.95 a pair. A candle snuffer, attractive and not necessarily just an ornament, costs $1 and a combination bottle opener and ice hammer costs $1.75. An easily-gripped mug is $4.50. Coasters are just 50 cents each, and a

While organist, R. Boutillier, played traditional wedding music, bride, Miss Shirley Sadie Scott-Polson entered St. Mary's Church, Saanichton, to exchange wedding vows with Arthur Henry Frederick Fido in a ceremony performed by Rev. E. H. Lee.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white net fashioned with lace inset panels posed over satin. Her lace jacket with lily point sleeves was trimmed with mother of pearl buttons, and her coronet headpiece with mother of pearl trim held a misting fingertip length veil. White gladioli blooms and red roses were in her cascade bridal bouquet. She wore pearl jewelry, the groom's gift.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Scott-Polson, Mount Newton Cross Road, Saanichton. Miss Heather Wishart, maid of honor, wore a yellow lace over taffeta dress with yellow headband and bouquet of mauve gladioli. Miss Beverly Scott-Polson, sister of the bride, wore a rose gown with flowered bandeau and nosegay of pink gladioli.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Fido, Mount Newton Cross Road, Saanichton, had Richard D. Scott-Polson, brother of the bride, as best man, while Danny Cuthbert and David Johnston ushered guests to pews marked with white ribbons and spring flowers.

Brentia Lodge, Brentwood Bay, was chosen for the reception party. A four-tier wedding cake flanked by candles and spring flowers centred the bride's table. Robert Kelow, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to her happiness.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip up-island, the bride wore a white knitted suit with white accessories, a pink shortie coat and mauve gladioli corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Fido will live on Dencross Terrace, Saanichton, until their new home on Mount Newton Cross Road is completed.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here Are Hints to Enhance
The Beauty of Your Back

Some of the things which mar the beauty of feminine backs are a curved spine, round shoulders, fatty deposits across the shoulders and pimples.

Often women who have an otherwise unblemished skin, do have pimples in this area. One reason this is true is because of the inaccessibility of the back. It is impossible to reach all of it unless you use a long-handled bath brush. Every woman should do this and thus give all of her back a daily scrubbing. Pimples and blackheads on the back may come from clogged oil glands. This may be due to improper cleansing.

Of course blemishes anywhere on the body may come from infection in the body, from poor elimination or the wrong kind of food. If you eat rich, heavy food and neglect fruits and fruit juices and vegetables, diet may be your trouble. If you have diseased teeth or tonsils or sinuses, any one of these could be the culprit.

Today I want to give you another exercise for reducing fat across the back. Bend your trunk forward so that you form a right angle. Let your arms drop toward the floor. Keep your back in this position as you pull to the right with your left shoulder and back and then as far to the left with your right shoulder as possible. Go as far in each direction as you can. Move the shoulders forward as you pull to the left or right. Let the arms swing loosely and concentrate on one shoulder at a time. This exercise should be done slowly.

Here are other factors to watch when thinking of how stocking seams straight? How about your back hairline? Is it well cut and neat looking? Do you swing your hips out in back as you walk with a waddling motion? Is your skirt wrinkled from sitting? Is your collar too high or too low? If you have a short neck and wear a high collar the latter will meet your hairline and eliminate your neck.

If you would like to have my exercises for round shoulders (leaflet No. 7) or for the spine (leaflet No. 16) send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

appeared to have a fighting chance, including the three Canadian boats, Vancouver's Mary Bower and Gometra, and the RCN's Oriole from Esquimalt. GOT EARLY LEAD

Adios had established an early lead, with Maruffa and Dorade, also a Seattle Yacht Club entry, snapping at her heels.

The other yachts were bunched over a 10-mile area, bowing along under a 11 to 12-knot wind. Then Oriole ran into trouble. Her mainsail split, vertically, near the mast, and she lost valuable time despite emergency repairs.

Oriole never recovered; ran into trouble again when he calmed for hours near the lightship, and failed to finish within the time limit.

Yankee Doodle of Portland was also an early casualty when her main blew out. Yankee Clipper, sailed by the "tough luck" Seattle Sea Scouts, broke a mainstay and put in to Port Angeles.

The other yachts struggled on, but up to the turn, the race was all between Adios, Maruffa and Dorade. They often passed within a cable length of each other as they tacked the position.

Adios made the turn first, shortly after 1 a.m., followed by Maruffa and Dorade.

Then came the decisive reach; Adios and Maruffa elected a starboard tack, toward the S.S. shore; Dorade heeled on the port tack, in the opposite direction.

TWO DID, TWO DIDN'T

Adios and Maruffa caught the wind, Dorade didn't, and there is the story of the race. On the way home, Adios led until freshening winds enabled Maruffa, a faster boat before the wind, to overtake her.

It was a two-boat race all the way down the strait, settled only when Adios skidded home within the handicap time differential.

Interest in the race, on the part of both yachtsmen and landmen, was the greatest ever. For the first time, continuous progress reports were made possible, through the loan of Sudbury and her communications equipment. CKDA's news director, Andy Stephen, carried out a 32-hour marathon broadcast, with reports every hour. Capt. Harley Blagborne, renowned for his deep-sea salvage job of the Greek freighter Makedonia, brought Sudbury close alongside the competing yachts for the photographs appearing in this issue of The Times.

Competitors had high praise for the host, RVYC. Not a single protest was recorded.

Bullet-Pierced Body Found By Children

EDMONTON (CP) — The bullet-pierced body of Lewis Lloyd, 37, was discovered Sunday afternoon in a rain-drenched ditch near a drive-in theatre on the outskirts of the city.

RCMP said Lloyd moved to Edmonton from Vancouver six weeks ago.

Two children, Gertrude, 11, and Edelgard Herzog, 13, discovered Lloyd's body about 3 p.m. Sunday, 300 yards from their home a half-mile south of the city limits.

Two wounds indicated a bullet had entered his right side and passed through the body, emerging below the heart.

The body lay face up in a ditch on the west side of the muddy road, 200 yards from Lloyd's delivery truck, which had sunk into a five-foot ditch on the other side of the road.

Police sought clues as to how Lloyd left the vehicle after it entered the ditch. Rain had washed away nearly all footprints and tracks.

HUNT WEAPON

RCMP used rakes to scrape the surrounding area and ditches to find a weapon. No blood or traces of bullet marks were found on the truck.

Edmund Gendron, a room-mate and an associate in a landscaping business, is the last known person to have seen Lloyd alive.

Gendron said Lloyd received a phone call about 1 a.m. Sunday, became excited and suddenly left the apartment they shared in a quiet street, close to downtown.

He returned a little later, borrowed $20 from Gendron, took the truck keys and left, saying he was going to a motel to see his wife.

New Church Union Formed During Marathon Session

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A tired-out general council of the Congregational Christian Churches gave final overwhelming approval Saturday to a merger with the Evangelical and Reformed Church, effective June 25, 1957, under the name of "United Church of Christ."

The action came after 31 exhausting hours of almost-continuous meetings, including an all-night session.

Delegates who had gone sleepless through the night and who kept going strong all day in keen debate wound it up by voting 1,310 to 197 in favor of the precedent setting church union.

PRINCESS ANNE LOST BRIEFLY AT POLO GAME

LONDON (UP) — Five-year-old Princess Anne touched off a flurry of excitement at a polo match Sunday when she broke away from the side of her mother, Queen Elizabeth, and dashed off into the crowd.

Her aunt, Princess Margaret, ran behind her shouting: "Anne, Anne, wait for me!" But the youngster became temporarily lost in the crowd until a woman shouted, "here she is."

The little princess was led back to the royal box while her polo-playing father, the Duke of Edinburgh, rode ahead on horseback to clear a path for her.

Boy 15, Charged In B.C. Slaying

IRVINE'S LANDING, B.C. (CP) — A 15-year-old boy was charged with murder today but RCMP refused to disclose his name or when and where he will come up in court.

They said the boy was arrested in the rifle slaying of Mrs. Mary Flynn, 65, found Friday with two bullets in her body.

"We can't tell you his name because he's a juvenile," police said. "We can't release his name unless the magistrate gives us permission."

The boy was arrested Saturday at nearby Pender Harbor about a day after two neighbors found the widow's body, slumped over in a chair in the log cabin where she lived alone.

The area is about 60 miles northwest of Vancouver, on Sechart Peninsula.

The two women had come to ask Mrs. Flynn to do a baby-sitting job. They found her with part of her jaw shot away and a second bullet hole in the chest.

Police said they could find no motive for the slaying and had not been able to locate the death weapon—believed to be a heavy calibre rifle.

The boy, hunted down by RCMP with a tracking dog and search plane, was taken to Sechart where the charge was read to him.

RCMP also refused to say when or where the boy would come up in court, reporting only: "The case has been adjourned."

THROAT CUT

'Safety' Belt Kills Driver

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A safety belt was the instrument of death for a New York man who died Sunday from car crash injuries.

Kurt Eichler, 62, was riding last Thursday in a 1956 Mercedes-Benz driven by his son, Frank, 26.

The elder Eichler's seat belt was either loose or worked loose as the car crashed into an oncoming auto, police said. The elder Eichler slipped down and the safety belt caught him on the throat, severing his trachea.

Dr. Leonard Berry listed the cause of death as asphyxiation.

John W. Bell, 69, 3420 Seymour, was released from St. Joseph's hospital Sunday after treatment for head cuts suffered when he was in collision with a car while attempting to cross Douglas at Cloverdale. Driver of the car was Edgar R. Nicklin, 1038 Pembroke.

Miss Minnie Gets 20 Years For Embezzling $3 Million

NORFOLK, Va. (UP) — Miss Minnie Mangum, who learned how to do good things for people while teaching—a Sunday school class, was sentenced to 20 years in prison today for embezzling almost $3,000,000 so she could help friends and relatives.

Miss Mangum was head bookkeeper for a building and loan association when an argument she had with an employee aroused the suspicions of an examiner.

Judge H. Lawrence Bullock read the sentence. It included 10 years each on two indictments, to run consecutively, and two years each on 11 other indictments, to run concurrently.

It was expected she will be eligible for parole after serving five years.

She could have received a sentence totalling 220 years.

Miss Minnie stood grim-faced in the crowded courtroom as the sentence was read. She had slipped into court early this morning to elude a swarm of photographers.

After the sentence was read, she was led away by three plainclothes officers to go to Richmond to begin serving the state prison immediately. Until today she had been free on bond.

A probation officer read a report prior to the sentencing.

The plump, 52-year-old spinster pleaded guilty to 22 charges of embezzling. She was sentenced in the same courtroom where she admitted a fantastic juggling of the books of Commonwealth Building and Loan Association over nearly a score of years to cover up for much of the shortages which amounted to more than $2,844,000.

Miss Mangum previously was sentenced to 10 years for lying to state officials about the financial condition of the building and loan association where she worked.

B.C. teachers will get a first-hand view of the forest industry in a three-day tour of Macmillan and Bloedel's Alberni Valley operations.

The teachers, selected by the B.C. Department of Education, will take part in the first educational tour of its kind ever staged by an B.C. forest industry company. The tour was arranged by the education department to increase the vocational counsellors' knowledge of industry in the province.

Today and Tuesday will be spent in a study of operations of the Somass division sawmill, the Alberni pulp and paper mill and the Alberni plywood division. On the third day, teachers will tour the Sproat Lake division.

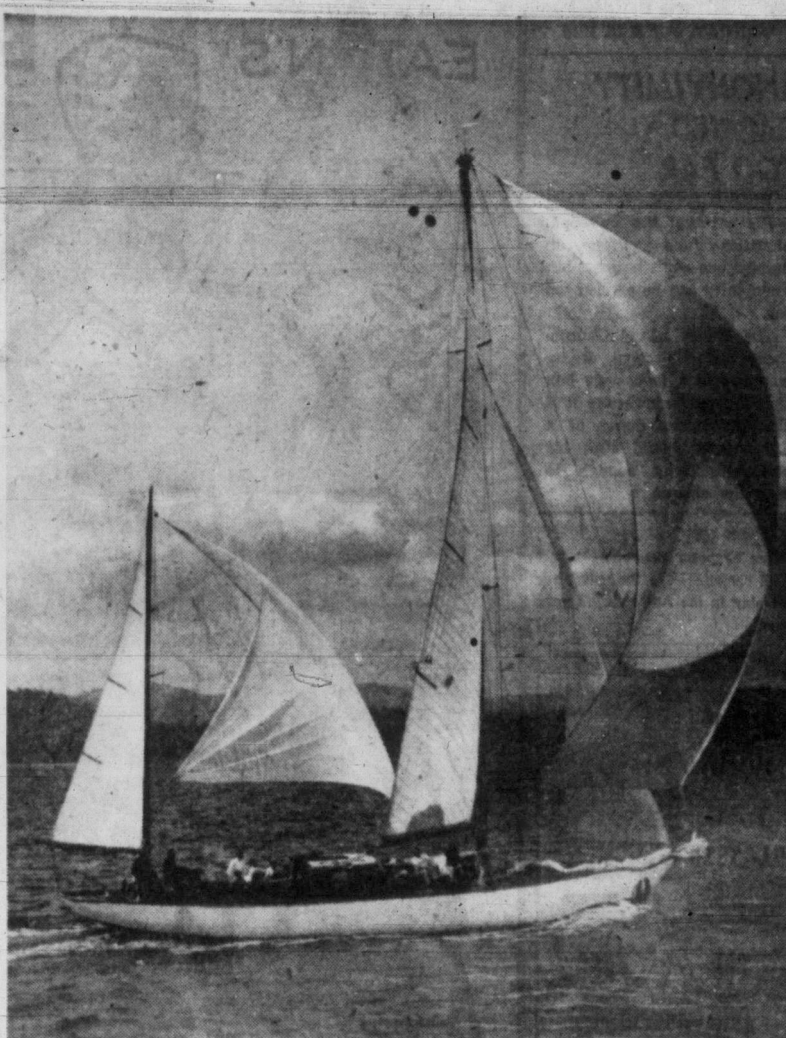

Building Inspection May Merge With City Engineering

Victoria city building inspection department will be merged with the city engineer's department Thursday if council approves a recommendation passed today by public works committee.

The departmental shift will give city engineer James C. Garnett jurisdiction over the building department while retaining building inspector William Osterink as sub-department head.

Mr. Osterink was reported in agreement with the merger, which was explained as a streamlining procedure to reduce administration problems.

In effect it means main civic powers will now be relegated to three senior city hall executives, city manager C. C. Wyatt, comptroller Dennis Young and city engineer Garnett.

QUEEN WILL ENTERTAIN VCS TUESDAY

Mickey O'Rourke Gets There Sans Passport

LONDON (CP) — Michael O'Rourke, 81-year-old Canadian Victoria Cross winner from Vancouver, arrived by air today just in time to join the first of the VC centenary celebrations.

O'Rourke, who made a last-minute decision to come to London, landed here just before noon. He came without a passport but a Trans-Canada Airlines spokesman said O'Rourke got past the immigration officials without any trouble.

"It's fairly unusual to come without a passport but everything went smoothly," the informant said.

O'Rourke originally ducked the invitation to come to London, thinking it was a joke. When he changed his mind, it was feared he had left it too late but an unidentified well-wisher arranged his passage at the last moment.

He came to London with his sister, Mrs. Sadie King. It was believed they both went to Westminster Abbey for this afternoon's ceremony, which opened a week-long series of services for VC winners from most Commonwealth countries.

The address at today's Abbey service was to be given by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher.

Other ceremonies are scheduled throughout the week. On Tuesday Queen Elizabeth will review a parade of VCs in London's Hyde Park. The same afternoon, the anniversary of the day in 1857 when Queen Victoria made the first presentation of the Cross, Queen Elizabeth and other members of the Royal Family will attend a garden party for the medal holders and their relatives.

For days now ships and planes have been bringing the VCs to London. In many cases the award was made posthumously, and sons and widows of the dead will represent them at the ceremonies.

Heading the Canadian contingent of 35 is Lt. Gen. Sir Richard Turner of Quebec City, 85 next month and one of the most decorated soldiers Canada has produced. He won his VC fighting in the Boer War and later was one of Canada's foremost commanders in Europe during the First World War.

The Victoria Cross has been won by 1,347 men in British and Commonwealth forces, of whom 385 are still living. All have been invited to the centenary celebrations and besides the Canadians those able to come will include 37 from Australia, nine from New Zealand and 11 from India.

VIRGINIA PACHYDERM GETS NO NAIL POLISH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Have you ever tried cutting hangnails off the toes of a nervous elephant? Captive elephants have them all the time. Anyway, the problem may be nearing a solution. Carey Baldwin, director of San Francisco's Fleishacker Zoo, says Virginia, one of his pachyderms, is like a different elephant since a local doctor (not a veterinarian), tried a new cuticle remover on her hind feet.

Baldwin, a jockey fellow, said there had been some thought of putting on fingernail polish too, but he didn't say it very seriously.

New Chief Justice Sits First Time; Hears Divorces

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan of Victoria sat for the first time as a supreme court judge at the courthouse here today.

To assist Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane in dealing with the heavy list of divorce cases of the year.

Petitioned for divorces totaled 19. The list was divided between the two justices and the cases were heard in Supreme Court and County Court.

Earlier, Mr. Justice Ruttan, who was sworn in as a Supreme Court justice in Vancouver last week, was welcomed as a member of the bench by Mr. Justice Macfarlane at a ceremony held in Supreme Court.

Over 50 members of the Victoria bar were present at the ceremony.

Victoria Man Gets Top Award From De Molay

The Legion of Honor, highest award accorded in the Order of De Molay, was presented Sunday to Robert W. Campbell, a founder of the Victoria chapter, at the Knights of Pythias Hall.

Presentation was made by Dr. Gordon F. Grant, "active member" for B.C. and first recipient of the honor in the province.

Representative De Molay awards were presented to Royce Johnson and David Walker.

TWO KILLED AS SLIDES BLOCK CLIMB

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Avalanches and snows have forced an Argentine expedition to abandon its climb of 26,810-foot Mount Dhaulagiri, the world's highest unclimbed peak. The team was about 1,500 feet from the top.

A message reaching here said the eight-man Argentine team was all right but that at least two native porters had been killed by avalanches.

The same team tried unsuccessfully to scale Dhaulagiri, the world's fifth tallest peak, two years ago.

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Finland's Soini Nikkunen bettered the world javelin record Sunday with a throw of 274 feet, 1.83 inches.

Sime Given Extra Chance For Olympics

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Sprint star Dave Sime of Duke University and Franklin (Bud) Held of javelin renown Sunday were given a chance to compete in the Olympic tryouts at Los Angeles this week in an unprecedented move by the United States Olympic committee.

Sime was granted permission to try out for a place in the 200 metres. He had already qualified to try for one of the three Olympic team places in the 100-metre dash. He failed to qualify in the 200 metres when he dropped out of the race with a groin injury in the national collegiate championships eight days ago.

The committee felt both Sime and Held, in view of their injuries, should be afforded a chance in the tryout.

my side of the story

The Duchess of Windsor

And for David the time had come to marry. The man who had dismissed marriage as something for the ever-receding future now felt the need of a wife to share his burdens. It was my fate to be the object of his affection at the crucial moment of his decision. But his words now filled me with apprehension.

"David," I exclaimed, "you mustn't talk this way. The idea is impossible. They'd never let you."

My concern failed to change his mood. "I'm well aware of all that," he said almost gaily, "but rest assured, I will manage it somehow."

As we walked, I tried to dissuade him from harboring this thought. But he turned aside my every sensible objection with light-hearted insolence.

Finally I said: "There's your family. There's your mother."

The smile vanished. A look of pain crossed his face. "Yes," he said, "that may be difficult."

David went ahead with his plans for the Baldwin dinner. As usual, I helped him plan the menu and the table decorations.

The guests included Dickie and Edwina Mountbatten-Lord and Lady Wigram, Duff and Diana Cooper, "Joey" Leigh, David's equerry, and his wife Sarah, Emerald Cunard, Admiral of the Fleet Sir Ernie Chatfield and Lady Chatfield and Colonel and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh.

country seat, long enough to have tea with him and Princess Olga before continuing on our way.

The meeting between the Balkan prince and the British monarch was hardly calculated to hearten either foreign office.

In a Slavic style worthy of his mountain-chieftain forebears, Paul led us in a wild motorcade through the countryside, scattering peasants and chickens in a flurry of blouses and feathers, curses and cackles.

David had a number of comments on the excursion: the one that really amused me was, "This is just about what I expected. The only thing that bothers me is that I can't figure which he cares less about, the peasants or the chickens or us."

Next morning we arrived in Sibenik. The Nahlin was trim and gleaming white as she rode alongside the dock; and to come upon her so, in a picture-book setting of mountains and sunlit sea, made me appreciate as never before the pleasure and power that attended those in the company of a king.

TUESDAY: The crowds cry: "Long live love."

As so often before in the company of those of power and influence, I was conscious of the assaying glance, the unspoken, probing question beneath the polite surface.

As best as I can recall, this was one of the last times that Ernest and I were publicly together in David's company. Not long afterward I told Ernest that I was starting divorce proceedings. He moved to the Guards' Club.

Having made my difficult and painful decision, I refused to look backward. I had little time for regret: my every hour was taken up by expanding social activities in London and the weekends at the Fort.

FLANS CHANGED

When the question of David's summer holiday was in his mind in the year he became king (1936) he planned to rent Maxine Elliott's villa, near Cannes. Unfortunately, France had meanwhile been caught up in a wave of civil turmoil brought on by Blum's Popular Front; in fact, David was informed by his worried ambassador that the Red Flag had been flown in plain sight of his intended abode.

Since it would be impolite for him to appear under such circumstances, he gave up the idea of the Riviera and chartered a yacht, the Nahlin, belonging to Lady Yule.

NEW CRUISE

He decided now to explore new waters—the Dalmatian Coast, Greece and the Aegean Isles, and the Bosphorus. His hope was to recapture the care-free spirit of our last two summers and perhaps build up a little diplomatic good will in a region of growing concern to his government.

David having arranged for the yacht to proceed to Sibenik, on the coast of Yugoslavia, the main party assembled in Paris, with the exception of the Duff Coopers and Herman and Katherine Rogers, who joined us after the cruise was under way. On the evening of August 8 we departed in a private car on the Orient Express.

VISIT TO PAUL

On the second morning we were due to arrive at Belgrade, where our car was to be shunted over to the local train to the coast. En route however, David was bombarded by telegraphic invitations from Prince Paul, the Regent of Yugoslavia. The prince was insistent that our party break the trip and visit him.

David finally consented to hold our car in the little town of Kreinberg, near Prince Paul's

Joint Effort Obtained Coin For Centennial

Ottawa's announcement of the minting of a silver dollar for B.C.'s centennial in 1958 was largely due to a concerted effort put forward by B.C. organizations, L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, said today.

"Chambers of commerce, boards of trade, mining organizations and every MP and senator from B.C. helped in bringing this project to the government's attention," Mr. Wallace said. "The committee is grateful for this help. The spirit of co-operation and co-ordination which it demonstrates is a fine omen for a wonderful centennial year."

It is believed to be only the third time in Canada's history that a special coin has been minted. Provincial officials were pessimistic about Ottawa's reaction to the request when it was learned that there are a number of other notable anniversaries in 1958, including the 350th anniversary of the founding of Quebec and the 100th anniversary of the minting of the first Canadian coin.

"It was the concerted effort of all these fine people and organizations which brought this about," said Mr. Wallace. "The silver dollar will help spread the fame of our province throughout Canada and the continent."

Magistrate H. C. Hall said there was doubt that Souliere had stolen a truck willfully. The soldier said he remembered nothing of driving the truck from the time he was given the keys by a man he thought to be the owner, to when he awakened in the vehicle as police stopped him. He had been drinking, he said.

He said he thought he was doing the man a favor by taking the light truck back to Gordon Head, where he was headed when stopped.

HOOG FARMERS

Communist China is estimated to have 80,000,000 hogs, compared with 50,000,000 on United States farms.

Iran Yields in Border Dispute With U.S.S.R.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Gen. Amonollah Jahanbani, head of the Iranian boundaries mission, announced Sunday the century-old Iran-Soviet border dispute has been settled. A member of the mission said the agreement was "more favorable to the Soviet than to Iran." Iran had conceded some land to the Russians, he added.

Ald. Lily Wilson to Head Canadian Day Ceremonies

City Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson will be chairman of "I Am a Canadian Day" ceremonies to be held before the Legislative Buildings June 30.

Final arrangements for the annual ceremony were made last week at a meeting of the Victoria Citizenship Council. The program will commence at 7:30 p.m., with an invocation by Dr. R. McElroy Thompson, First United Church.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall will administer the oath to new Canadians Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tuszar, natives of Estonia.

L. Westendale, past grand father of the Native Sons of B.C., will announce the winner of Victoria's Good Citizen of the year, and Mayor F. B. Scurrah will make the presentation.

The 5th West Coast Harbor Defence Battery Band R.C.A. will perform during the ceremonies under the direction of bandmaster W. M. Clark. Standard bearers for the colorful event will be members of the IOOE.

Professor C. G. Burchill, Royal Roads service college, will be the principal speaker.

When Skin Itch Drives You MAD

Here is a clean stainless steel, penetrating antiseptic—known all over Canada as MOONE'S EMERALD OIL—that dries right in and brings swift relief from the almost unbearable itching and distress.

Its action is so powerfully penetrating that the itch is promptly eased, and with continued use your troubles may soon be over.

Use EMERALD OIL night and morning as directions advise for one full week. It is safe to use and failure is rare indeed.

MOONE'S EMERALD OIL can be obtained in the original bottle at any modern drug store.

ANONYMITY CARRIED TOO FAR

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—It's not that the Episcopal charities fund objects to anonymous contributions, but anonymity can be carried too far.

The Rhode Island Churchman, the Episcopal organ, suggests in a front-page box that it would appreciate it if the anonymous donor of a $20 cheque would shed his anonymity long enough to sign the cheque.

Fine Follows 'Doing Favor'

Gordon Souliere, Camp Gordon Head, was fined $25 for driving without a licence, but dismissed from a charge of taking a car without the owner's consent when he appeared in Saanich police court last week.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said there was doubt that Souliere had stolen a truck willfully. The soldier said he remembered nothing of driving the truck from the time he was given the keys by a man he thought to be the owner, to when he awakened in the vehicle as police stopped him. He had been drinking, he said.

He said he thought he was doing the man a favor by taking the light truck back to Gordon Head, where he was headed when stopped.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Gen. Amonollah Jahanbani, head of the Iranian boundaries mission, announced Sunday the century-old Iran-Soviet border dispute has been settled. A member of the mission said the agreement was "more favorable to the Soviet than to Iran." Iran had conceded some land to the Russians, he added.
